VERSATILE FRESHMEN DISPLAY TALENTS

Dr. Cooke Asks, 'What Will College Record Show?'

Greeting the Student Body at the beginning of a new college year, Dr. Dennis H. Cooke, president, asked the pertinent question, "What Will Your College Record Show?"

"The mental image held by our associates is more telling in future influence than the record of academic grades," Dr. Cooke stated, in making a plea for improved human relationships as a means of preventing war. "Can you disagree and yet be agreeable? Can you co-operate in common talks? Can you entertain and enrich the lives of your associates?"—These questions Dr. Cooke urged the student to keep before (Continued on Page 4)

International Relations Club Enrolls 32

Bob Bowie, president of the International Relations Club, announced an enrollment of 32 members at the last meeting. The Club is scheduled to meet every two weeks at 10:20, in room 5 until further announcements are made.

The purpose of the I. R. C. is to enlighten members on the vital issues in world affairs, thereby promoting better understanding between nations. Any college student who wishes may become a member of the club. The president has asked that interested students contact him as soon as possible concerning membership in the club, as orders for pins are to be posted soon. Officers of the club stated that with increased membership, the organization will be enabled to secure speakers well informed in international matters.

Kappa Chi Will Pledge Members

Dr. William R. Locke, Professor of religious education, has announced that the H.P.C. Chapter of the Kappa Chi, National Fraternity for students who are preparing for the Christian ministry, will pledge new members during the month of October.

Replacing the former Ministerial Association, the H.P.C. Chapter was organized last May, with members from the Duke University Chapter administering installation ceremonies. Officers installed in the initial ceremonies to serve for the year 1951-52 include Claude Barrett, president; J. C. Grose, Jr., vice-president; Bill Bigham, secretary; Charles Caudill, treasurer; Dan Snow, S.C.A. representative; and Dr. William R. Locke, faculty adviser. Fourteen members remain from (Continued on Page 3)

History Dept. Is Enlarged

The history department, to meet unexpectedly large demands for courses in government and history, has secured the services of Dr. James Moffitt, from Greenville, South Carolina. Dr. Moffitt, a former faculty member of Furman, had announced his intention to retire from teaching, but due to insistent demand for teachers in his field, he consented to resume his work. He has had wide experience in the type of work he is to do here.

Dr. Deskins, head of the history department, has expressed his satisfaction in seeing the history department enlarged, affording each student the opportunity for more individual assistance in his work.

Mrs. Hill Will Assist Librarian

Mrs. Ben H. Hill has been added to the staff of H. P. C. in the capacity of assistant librarian. Mrs. Hill, the wife of the head of the biology department at H. P. C., Dr. Ben H. Hill, is a graduate of Salem College, where she received her bachelor degree in English, afterwards receiving her M.A. in English from Columbia University. In addition to her duties as assistant librarian, Mrs. Hill will assist in the English department.

Dr. and Mrs. Hill, with their daughter, live in High Point. Their daughter, who is in Junior High School, is a member of the Senior High School Orchestra.

News of Alumni

George J. Fuggins, who attended H. P. C. in 1947-48, has been promoted to the grade of captain at the U. S. Armed Forces European Headquarters in Heidelberg, Germany. It has been announced by the Headquarters of the Heidelberg Military Post.

L. Byerly Holt, M.D., a graduate of this college in the Class of 1940, is the director of the Winston-Salem eye bank, recognized

Mrs. Locke Joins Faculty

Mrs. William R. Locke has begun her work as instructor in biology, supervising three sections of the Biology Laboratory. Mrs. Locke, who is a graduate of Bates College, Lewiston, Maine, and a former laboratory technician for Howard Medical School and The Public Health Department, State of Massachusetts, Mrs. Locke did her post graduate work at Simmons College, Boston, majoring in laboratory technology.

The wife of Dr. William R. Locke, professor of religious education at H. P. C., she is the mother of two daughters, Margaret, grade 10, and Marjorie, grade 5, in the local High School and Junior High School. In addition to their interest in band and orchestra activities, in which they take active parts, Mrs. Locke says they are proving themselves to be quite capable in sharing the home responsibilities, enabling her to carry on the added responsibility of class work.

Freshmen Are Given Welcome By Methodists

The High Point College freshmen were given a welcome by the First Methodist Church, September 18, at Camp Betty Hastings. The party was in the form of a hay ride and a winner roast, followed by a fellowship hour of singing, with Wilson Rogers, superintendent of the Sunday school, giving a brief talk. Reverend Kenneth Goodson extended an invitation to the freshmen to be of his congregation each Sunday.

for his work in performing corneal transplants. Dr. Holt is at present working to build up an eye bank which will be the means of restoring sight to people blinded by a defective cornea. Healthy corneas in an otherwise defective eye have been transplanted successfully. (Continued on Page 4)

New Students Bring New Life To H. P. C.

Enrollment Totals 609

Of the 609 students enrolling at the beginning of the semester, the registrar's office announces there are 123 seniors, 137 juniors, 149 sophomores, 184 freshmen, and 16 special students. Of this number, the 184 freshmen have captured the interest of upperclassmen and teachers alike by their wholehearted entrance into campus activities, beginning with the Freshman Talent Show, in which every type of entertainment from boogie woogie and hillbilly music to Greig's "Concerto in A Minor" was featured.

An annual event for freshmen during their first week on the campus, this year's performance was given before an almost capacity audience in Roberts Hall. Audience comment indicated approval and enjoyment throughout almost two hours of impromptu entertainments.

The Mountain Hoosiers Get Their Man

Horace Noble, Bob McLeod, Herb Potts and Keith Clark, a quartet of "mountain hoosiers," calling themselves The Corn Shuckin' Moonshiners, held their audience literally . . . at gunpoint, actually shooting (with blanks) a spectator who had the impertinence to walk out on their original version of "On Top of Old Smoky." However, it has been reported that the spectator was not fatally wounded, a thing which could not be said of the unlucky individual who emptied the jug of "corn squeezings."

Reginald Cooke Goes Greig

Reginald Cooke, freshman from Malden, proved his versatility by playing the piano solo, "Greig's Concerto in A Minor," immediately following with a composition of his own, "III Movement of Cook-o-kie's Opus 13," in sharp contrast to the dignity of Greig. He showed himself equally adept in ukelele and vocal performances.

B.S.U. Meets In Fellowship

The Baptist Student Union of H. P. C. met for the first fellowship event of the semester in the Student Center, Thursday night. Officers of the organization announced that the meeting was for the purpose of giving students the opportunity to understand the B. S. U. The program was informal, with pastors of the various Baptist churches of the city greeting guests informally.

Group activity was the order of the evening, with Arthur Whitescarver, program chairman, in charge of entertainment, closing with the formation of the Friendship Circle.

Officers of the B. S. U., Dixie Henderson, president, and Dr. Mabel Reavis, faculty adviser, express the belief that the organization has a promising future on the Campus of H. P. C.

FROM YOUR PRESIDENT

Hello Everybody,

Well, it's back to school at H. P. C. It's certainly a genuine pleasure to see so many old friends again and to meet such an enthusiastic freshman class. On behalf of the student government, I'd like to welcome each of you back to another school year.

Your student government has held one meeting and plans to hold one every two weeks in the future. We have several constructive ideas under consideration at the present, about which we will inform you at the earliest possible moment. Incidentally, your interest and suggestions are heartily encouraged. We wish as many people as possible to take part in student affairs.

Now at the risk of being presumptuous, I'd like to offer a few suggestions for a more successful year: First, attend every class and assembly unless you have a real reason for being absent—promptness is important, also. Second, set aside some time for study each day. Remember that preparation for final exams begins with your first class meeting. Third, take part in all your class activities. Try to make your class the best in school. Finally, and this is chiefly for new students, read the bulletin board at least once a day.

Looking forward to a great year for everyone,

Yours very sincerely,
STUDENT GOVERNMENT,
DOUG HOLBROOK, President

EDITORIAL

It is always a pleasure to greet old classmates and welcome new ones at the beginning of a college year, and this year, we are especially fortunate in having a group of unusually talented and enthusiastic freshmen and transfer students from other colleges.

However, not all of our old classmates have returned. Some of them have been called to foreign lands to defend the kind of freedoms we, as students of a Christian college take for granted.

Promoters of communism, realizing the important influence exerted by colleges, make it their policy to infiltrate these institutions of higher education as one of the first steps in preparing to invade a country with communist propaganda. But, in a smaller college such as ours, made up chiefly of students who have grown up in the American and Christian traditions, such doctrine would find few, if any, followers. Yet, there are more subtle ways of undermining democracy than by open promotion of communism. Communist leaders are aware of this, and they take advantage of every opportunity to stir up dissension in American institutions, gradually breaking down the initiative of American people by advocating various degrees of socialism, a first cousin to communism. The promoters of socialism and communism are on the job! They take nothing for granted. If we are to preserve the American way of life, we shall have to stop defending it and start promoting it, promoting it with the same enthusiasm they are displaying in trying to tear it down.

By speaking of American traditions, we do not mean the blind clinging to an institution or custom because it is old. It is the American tradition to change the old when something new is better. By democracy we mean a society in which the dignity of the individual is paramount, a society governed by the combined will of the individuals who compose it, not a society which sacrifices the individual to the masses. And when we say "the American way of life," we do not refer to a static way of life, but to a highly flexible way of life, which has allowed us to become the most progressive nation in the world in the short period of our history. We wish to preserve the right to continue that progress unhampered by dictatorial interference.

When nations or individuals begin to surrender a part of their freedom for what they consider a measure of security, the final result is loss of both security and freedom.

Yes, our former classmates are in the front lines in the battle for democracy abroad. But who is manning the front lines at home? Let's make High Point College a fortress for democracy by actively promoting it and by actively opposing its enemies. This we can do by co-operation, each one doing his share as a responsible citizen.

Speaking of the Pleasant Approach

In his address to students at the first Assembly of this semester, Dr. Cooke called attention to the importance of the pleasant approach in meeting campus associates. Our candidate for top rating on this score is Miss Pat Buzhardt, sophomore from Denton, a young lady with a "smile that won't come off."

Our switchboard operators here at the college all rank high in the pleasant approach, but we are giving Pat honorable mention because she showed such a fine spirit during her recent ordeal, a painful allergic reaction to sun light at the beach. Pat didn't look much like Pat, but she was there just the same, and the smile was there, too. You couldn't see the smile on her lips; they were too swollen to smile, but you could see it in her eyes and hear it in her voice. We can use more like Pat!

THE BOOKSTORE PHILOSOPHER

Now I don't want a girl just like
The one that married Dad.
Of course, they say, back then that kind
Was all the kind they had.
But, as for me, I'm telling you
That when it comes to dames,
I'll take one like that little blonde
That married Harry James.

To the Freshmen

As president of the Sophomore class, I would like to take this opportunity to welcome you to High Point College, which is to be home to most of you during this year. I hope that you will be very happy here with us, and will not hesitate to offer any and all new ideas to us which would help us to improve our ever-expanding college.

It is within my capacity to remind you that you are in line for the traditional freshman "rat week" which will be coming up within the next few weeks. I want to also remind you that we Sophs are your only lords and masters; the rest of the students may only watch our proceedings and join in the fun as spectators. "Rat week" has long been an enjoyable occasion, not only to the sophomores, but to the freshmen as well, although most of them are unable to see the joy in it until the week is over. It is merely a way of initiating you into the fold, and after it is over, you are no longer the "underdogs," but are a part of everything that goes on. The fact that you are a freshman will no longer be a source of jokes to you. I want you to know that there is absolutely no form of hazing on campus, and all things assigned to you have been passed by the faculty. Here's hoping that you will let us be your guides throughout the year, and good luck to you during your "week of trial!"

THE SOPHOMORES

Letters to Editor

Dear Editor:

Each year, with amazing regularity, colleges all over the United States are confronted with a condition that could be well termed "confernal splashmuts." This condition is merely a coined phrase expressing what freshmen cause to colleges . . . To an unsuspecting and green freshman, all kinds of instructions for various purposes are given, usually in the form of pranks—anything from "How to Grow Hair on Your Chest in Ten Easy Lessons" to "How to Make Friends of Classmates and Alienate Professors," sold usually for the benefit of a fraternity. Tests on the number of people in Russia by the name Osteltien and the necessity of labor representation in Southern France make their appearance before freshmen, the tests being supervised by the rats in charge of rat week. . . .

Of course, you have already discovered that this is a take-off on a freshman's view of college, its idiosyncratic professors, and anything else seemingly hindering progress in making the Dean's List every semester. No harm whatsoever is intended on the part of the writer, due mainly to his lack of ability to insult, and intelligence to act differently.

In short, not trying to sum up the provocations of all freshmen, college is a new life, we are really baffled at almost every turn, we are made fun of, and even though we can't help it, we have given High Point College "confernal splashmuts."

With all due respect to the college, its faculty, and upperclassmen,

DAVID ABERNATHY.

Editor: David, you may rest assured that you have our sincere sympathy and understanding. We were once in your position—didn't take consolation in this little secret we are passing on to you: If you persevere, the time will come when you can be one of the rats in charge of rat week!

AROUND TOWN AND CAMPUS

By SHELDON MANEKIN

It's another great school year at H. P. C. Every one is off to a good start, even my friend who expressed the following sentiment:

*"I'm through with women;
They cheat and they lie;
They prey on us males
Till the day we die;
They tease us, torment us,
Drive us to sin—
Boy! Who was that freshman blonde
That just walked in!!!"*

Memo to all students in Mr. Withers' classes: This is one of his famous sayings—quote: "If you raise your hand above your ear, my friend, you've become a volunteer." . . . unquote . . . A couple of new hits on top of the record parade are: "Because of You," sung best by Tony Bennett, and "I Get Ideas," sung best by Tony Martin. . . . Have you seen "A Place in the Sun," coming to one of the local theatres soon? Don't miss it. . . . Just discovered: the thing most women regret about their past is its length. . . . Overheard on a bus coming from town—Driver: "I thought I heard somebody tell me to stop." — Passenger's voice from the rear: "Drive on, she wasn't talking to you." . . . October is here, fall is here, and have you seen the sweater girls on the campus? Boy, oh boy!!! they're here. . . . Understand quite a few guys and gals listen to the Nighthawk on Skyland Patrol. Very good program at 11 each night. . . . They tell me a bachelor is a man who wouldn't take "Yes" for an answer. . . . Have you seen the new "Rolls and Hardly" car? It rolls down one hill but hardly up another. . . . See where Buddy Morrow's orchestra is attempting to roll down the same click groove cut out by the Ralph Flanagan organ during the past two years. He has a good band, but Flanagan is tops with me. . . . Plenty of bobby-soxers are being sent spinning with Billy Eckstine's singing of "Enchanted Land." . . . Enough said. . . .

I'll be seeing you around.

The Least Known Side of Athletics

Too many people look upon athletics from the physical side only, and in so doing they err. Athletic participation offers mental and emotional training too. Great lessons are learned by the athletes. Attitudes are formed that are carried into all phases of life. The athletic field offers in most instances an indirect, yet most effective, course in philosophy.

Early one spring, our high school baseball team was playing its first game of the season. The game had progressed to the last half of the ninth inning, and we, the home team, were at bat. There were baserunners on second and third bases. There were two outs.

Coming up to the plate, nonchalantly swinging a bat, was our left fielder, who looked like the very picture of relaxation. There was a great shout from the hometown spectators as he stepped into the batter's box, adjusted his cap, planted his feet firmly into the ground, and drew back his bat. The crowd settled down as the pitcher squinted at the squatting catcher for his sign. The pitcher took an abbreviated windup and delivered the first pitch. It was fouled into the screen covering the front of the grandstand. The next pitch was wide of the plate; the third pitch was inside; the next was called a strike. A hush had settled over the crowd. The tension flowed like an electric current, mounting as it spread throughout the crowd of spectators. The breeze that had been stirring was suddenly quiet. The pitcher nervously tapped the ground with his foot. He received his sign from the catcher. Taking his time, he went into a full windup. The crowd surged from their seats as the pitcher delivered the ball. There was a sharp crack as Jack propelled his bat around with the strength of his wrists, forearms and shoulders, and met the ball squarely. The ball was just a white speck as it hit the ground between the left and center fielder and rolled to the fence. The two baserunners who were running with the pitch scored the tying and winning runs amid the shouts of the crowd.

Later, in the dressing room, Jack asked by one of the younger members of the team, "Tell me Jack, weren't you worried when the count reached three-two?" Jack looked around and a slow grin spread its way over his face. "No, I wasn't worried," he replied. "You see, the count was three and two on the pitcher as well as on me, and I just let him do the worrying."

TO OUR MEN IN SERVICE

As we take time to gather around the Book Store and Student Center for a few moments of relaxation between classes, we shall probably give new students the impression that you are legends, the tireless sources of many jokes and endless tales. But there is something lacking here without you, an emptiness that cannot be filled by recounting old times. It would take the sound of your voices and the sight of your faces to fill that emptiness. To all of you who have gone from H. P. C. into the service of our country, we pay tribute. We shall remember you with a great sense of pride. The following men are listed as being in the service:

Jimmie Kent	Jim Fisher	Bucky Brown	"Red" Smith
"Forside" Owen	Jack Mitchell	Bob Grady	Tom Mison
Ray Burison	Hugh Gordon	Bob Forbes	Leon Greene
Jim Hoover	Henry Beddoe	Henry Mattox	Murray White
Barry Buchanan	Sid Talbot	Bill Fanality
Jim Alfred	Donald Brown	"Chic" Glaesner

The best of luck to these men—our boys.

(The Hi-Po will be sent free of charge to any H. P. C. man in the service whose name and address is submitted to the Editor.)

Stuff About Things:

In case you haven't noticed, that time of year is here again... The time of year when you first realize that those frosh you saw last year and looked down upon with such a disdainful eye are no longer that way. They're the Wise-Pool sophs now, and no purple caps... That time of year is here again when the snakes 'n snails and things of Spring are gone and the madness that is fall and that is Football is here; the Saturdays when spirits are high and the people with spirits are higher... Those delightful, balmy days that shouldn't be schooldays at all are here, and you're bumming cigarettes from the people you did last year when you swore you'd quit... And you're finding borrowed books never returned... You're trying not to tell the same stories to the same people you told them to last year... And you're trying to remember the one you heard yesterday... The time of year when you hate this grind but then you know down inside that you love it and that you're going to miss it when it's all over with... But you don't think much about that; you just want to laugh and live and some few of you will fall in love and not care at all about that fellow who said: "When Love breathes the first sigh, Wisdom breathes the last"... Yes, it's that time of year; when you'll be glad that all of the green from the trees has not yet left... You'll know it's Fall and yet at the same time when you see the blind beggar on Main Street, it'll remind you all of a sudden of the immortal beggar who once stood pitifully on a street corner, carrying a sign that reads simply: "It is Spring—and I Am Blind."

A DANCE STEP doesn't exactly bear a close relationship to athletics, but if you've ever had the pleasure of seeing the Mambo done, you'll think it's about the closest thing to a dummy scrimmage on the dance floor you've ever seen. As one guy said, it's "mayhem set to music." Seems the fellow who invented it, a gentleman by the name of Perez Prado, comes from Matanzas, Cuba, none other than Ray Vargas' happy-hacienda grounds. T'would seem proper that Ray start giving lessons down in the Country Club (Dr. Bartlett's dubbing of the Book Store). No Mad Latin, this Ray, he'd be just the one for the soul who wishes to adorn his or her step with a Souse American swing. Apologies, of course, to Arthur Paschal and his square dancing class, which is a real workout with an hour's catalogue credit thrown in.

"GEORGE CASE was one of the finest sportsmen I ever knew. He was an ideal... and to those of us who knew George, he will continue to live in our hearts as he lived in the hearts of the men with whom he played the game." With this simple tribute, the soul of George Case last week found its way to far greener fields than his sport had ever carried it.

Yet, we know that to George Case golf was not just a game, but a way of life. He played the Greatest Game of all—living—as ardently and honestly as he did his own game. To you who knew George at High Point College, and to you who met him far afield, may his playing of the game serve as the finer rulebook for living. This done, we can—as George already has—someday unflatteringly face the final reckoning from the Greatest Scorekeeper of all.

PERSONALITY SPOTLIGHT

By JOYCE LAYTON

The Personality Spotlight plays over the co-eds at H. P. C. and settles on one of the most popular and active, Joan Crowder. Joan was here with her characteristic warm welcome for both new and old students during registration. Her activities are numerous. She is secretary and treasurer of the Student Government, treasurer of the Theta Phi Sorority, member of the W. A. A., a member of the HI-PO business staff, and was secretary of the freshman class last year.

Joan is a graduate of High Point High School, and lives in High Point. She plans to receive her A.B. degree in religious education in June, 1954.

Her winning smile and friendly "Hello" to everyone has made her one of High Point College's favorite daughters.

Joan likes all types of sports, actively participating in the W. A. A. She likes to see people choose high ideals and cultivate good moral character. She likes those who are friendly and considerate.

Joan, we are looking forward with interest to your future at H. P. C. May you continue in your cheerful, friendly attitude toward your fellowmen. Your honesty and dependability have brought you a long way, and will take you further. We the students of H. P. C. salute you. We wish for you the success you so richly deserve.

The Personality Spotlight falls on Doug Holbrook, our new president of Student Government. It is especially fitting that he should be introduced in our first issue, since he is one of the first to welcome new students to our campus. In addition to being president of the Student Government, Doug is president of the E. H. O. Fraternity, a member of The Order of The Lighted Lamp, and was chief marshal last year.

Doug, a resident of High Point, plans to receive his B.S. degree in business administration from H. P. C. in June, 1952. He is six feet tall, weighs 170 pounds, has brown hair and brown eyes, and a ready smile. We are indeed proud of him as our student leader; and with the co-operation of all the students, we are confident that he will fulfill the trust we have placed in him.

For recreation, Doug likes sports, but strictly as a spectator. He misses football this year, but hopes it will not be too long before we can again compete for gridiron honors. Doug's clothes are in keeping with his love of sports. He does not like formal dress, but prefers casual, comfortable clothes.

Post graduate school will probably be the next step in Doug's career. May he have the best of luck and success in that challenging adventure.

We salute you, Doug Holbrook. May you continue your progress on the road to success!

Home Ec Club Hears Report on 'Careers In Home Economics'

The Home Ec Club resumed its monthly meeting schedule with upperclassmen reporting on "Careers in Home Economics," which are now open to college graduates in this field.

Misses Dixie Henderson, Ruth Waters, Dean Gore, and Betty Jo Stephens were hostesses for the September meeting. The club meets each month under the sponsorship of Miss Ada Johnson, head of the home economic department.

him with the affirmative answer as his goal.

"We are the determiners of future world conditions," Dr. Cooke declared. "Peace begins with person to person good will." The successful college student has a dynamo—a life purpose, he observed, giving as what he considered an adequate purpose, "A sense that I am needed in the world." No one else can do my part of the world's work—I feel a pulling sense of mission—a sense that I must be of service." It was Dr. Cooke's opinion that "any career chosen without a sense of being needed can only fall short from lack of motive."

In concluding, Dr. Cooke expressed the belief that the average college student rarely surveys the good things the college offers him. "Your response to opportunities here will be written in a record which will follow you throughout your entire life."

The Panther Prowls

Greetings! I am your new friend and colleague, the Prowling Panther. My chief job here at H.P.C. is to crouch in the shadows and listen for those "Three Little Words." So you see, you had better watch; you can count on my being there when the big events happen. I have seen and heard loads of secrets lately, so I'll let you in on some of the dope.

Jonsie Angie and Madge Parsons were recently blushing brides, and believe me, Linwood Carter was not exactly calm when he walked down that aisle to meet Lib. You should have seen Mildred Redding when Ed. S. gave her that sparkler! What excitement! Anyway, congratulations, and also to Betty Lou Rose whose finger also sparkles. I took a little trip to Mississippi a few weeks ago to check on a rumor that Dot Stone was going down to see Bill. Of course, I wanted to know the real low down. Boys, you don't have a chance—"She's took!"

Carolina seems to be taking over a certain cute bit of a sophomore. Yes, Betty A. Miller, that frat pin is mighty pretty. It's good to see old steadies from last year such as "Meas" and John. And folks, can you get over Boozie and Willie? That was a surprise, even to me, but I see its the real thing!

I flew up to Washington this summer to get in on that big pinning event. Yes, sir, Marion W. and Jack S. make one fine couple! Peggy P., am I right when I say Chicago really made a hit this summer? That identification bracelet engraved "Bud" is pretty good proof, huh?

Who are those freshmen boys who seem to be setting up permanent residence on the second floor of the girls' dorm. Lookie like Sonny Morris, Bunny Link, Sonny Thornton, and Bobby Gandy to me. Ah, but you really have the girls swooning. How about that!

Boys, you might as well give up. Peggy McGowan, transferred from W.C. is "signed and sealed." If you don't believe me just watch her when she gets a letter from that certain somebody from Carolina. Talking about the mail—have you seen Eleanor Goldston rushing the mailman? Couldn't be letters and pictures from Ray S., could it? Hum-m-m-m, sure could.

Have you met the Hi-Po's new cracker-jack photographer, Bill Hipps? Mighty cute, and personality plus, girls. That Charles Jarrell is worth keeping an eye on, too. These good-looking freshmen boys! I just wonder who the lucky, lucky girls are going to be. Did you know we had a beauty queen in our midst? Sure enough, that little ole Jackie East in second in the "Miss Brightleaf" contest of Guilford County.

Well gang, the sun is going down, so I'd better get going on my nightly prowling. I wouldn't want to miss anything. So-long 'till next time, and watch for me in the meantime, 'cause I'm the Panther who prowls.

C.C.C. Conducts Employment Survey Here

The College Chamber of Commerce has initiated plans for an employment survey of all the business firms in this vicinity. By coordinating its efforts with those of the Placement Office of the college, the C. C. C. hopes to better acquaint the business establishments of this community with the fact that there is a desire on the part of H. P. C. to provide qualified applicants for future and present employment needs.

Under the supervision of Dr. George H. Hobart, Dr. E. J. Coltrane, Miss Louise Adams, and Mr. Richard S. Dale; members of the club will contact personnel managers by means of direct mail and personal interviews in order to better understand their particular employment needs.

Dr. Coltrane and Miss Adams have done magnificent jobs in obtaining positions for students and graduates of our college in the past, and it is the desire of the Chamber of Commerce to bring more students in contact with the benefits our Placement Office has to offer.

Outstanding Students Are Recognized

J. Hobart Allred, Dean of Students, has announced the names of ten seniors chosen by the Faculty Executive Committee for membership in "Who's Who" Among Students in American Universities and Colleges for 1951-52, as follows:

Senior girls: Mary Sue Allred, Edna Lucille Craver, Martha Anne Frances Dearman, Dorene Weaver Lewis, and Martha Inez Queen; Senior boys: Ralph Futrell, Douglas Ray Holbrook, William Harris Hunter, William Sherwood Penfield, and Garland Earl Wampler.

Dean Allred stated that membership is awarded on the basis of excellence in scholarship, character, and promise of future service. Qualities of leadership and participation in extra-curricular activities are large determining factors in the final choice of candidates, with membership for each college strictly limited.

To attain membership in "Who's Who" of American Universities and Colleges is a distinct honor to the student and to his college.

By distributing student publications and pictures of campus activities, and by means of personal interviews, Dr. Coltrane is winning new friends for H.P.C.

Dr. Cooke Speaks In First of Series

In the first of a series of talks as a preliminary to Career Day, Dr. Dennis Cooke, President of High Point College, spoke at the High Point Senior High School, on "Education as a Career," Monday, October 29.

Continuing a busy schedule of speaking engagements, Dr. Cooke will appear before the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Church, Nov. 1, taking as his subject (Continued on Page 4)

H.P.C. Students Will Convene At State B. S. U.

Shirley Davis has been selected to serve as a convener at the State Convention of the B. S. U. which is meeting in Charlotte, Nov. 2, 3, and 4. Other students who will represent High Point at the Convention are Dixie Henderson, Jimmy Woolf, and Bob Bonwell. The purpose of the meeting is to promote closer integration among the separate college organizations.

Dr. Coltrane Represents H.P.C.

As the official representative of High Point College, Dr. E. J. Coltrane is visiting various high schools throughout the state as part of a program for acquainting high school pupils with the various colleges and helping them to decide on their future courses of study. On his schedule for this week were listed: Winston-Salem, Monday; High Point, Tuesday; Salisbury, Wednesday; Greensboro, Thursday; and Durham, Friday.

Williams Ends Month as Bursar

Beginning his second month in the position of bursar at H.P.C., Mr. Arthur Williams says that he is "very glad to be associated with this college," and is enjoying his work thoroughly. He is not speaking altogether as a newcomer to the college, however, since he graduated here in 1948; his previous college work was interrupted by a period of service in the U. S. Navy.

After serving two and a half years as a naval aviator, Mr. Williams accepted a position with the Pilot Life Insurance Company where he worked previous to accepting his present position.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams make their home in Archdale, and are active in community and church activities.

Dr. Hinshaw Has Charge Of Installation

Holbrook Welcomes Barrett as Chief

In a ceremony administered by Dr. Hinshaw, Dean of Instruction, Oct. 17, last year's marshals presented their sashes to 11 new marshals, with Douglas Holbrook as chief marshal relinquishing the office to Robert Barrett who will serve as chief marshal for 1951-52. New marshals include Willie Davis, Joan Frazier, Ruth Madison, Dorothy Stone, Anne Whitesill, David Auman, William Bigham, John Raper, Don Ridge, and Gerald Langfrey.

It is a decided tribute to a student to be chosen marshal, a position of tremendous responsibility as expressed by Dr. Hinshaw in naming the new officers. To meet the requirements, a student must have a pleasing personality, good grades, and willingness to work.

In welcoming the new chief, Douglas Holbrook expressed regret that Alec Pappas who gave up the office of chief marshal in January could not be present to participate in the ceremony.

EDITORIAL

In her dramatization of Remember the Ladies, at the All-Student Assembly recently, Carola Bell Williams portrayed with keen vividness the heroic spirits of women who have broken down barriers of custom to broaden woman's sphere of activity and influence.

Women now hold positions of responsibility in almost every field of human endeavor. This is as it should be, as all social institutions are merely outgrowths of the home, the number of institutions varying according to the complexity of the society. No one questions the fact that a home deprived of either parent is an incomplete institution. Educators frown upon the all-male or all-female staff in schools or colleges, saying that proper balance in a faculty requires members of both sexes. Business and industry are frankly dependent upon the services of women. In spite of all this, the most important field of all, that of government, is sadly neglected by women.

Mothers consider it their duty to make a safe home for their children, protecting them from all hazards; but in so doing, they lose sight of the fact that the child is no longer confined to the four walls of his home. The world is his home, and it is becoming an increasingly smaller world. If the women of the future are to do their duty by their children, they will have to extend their influence, studying matters of government and international relations, and taking their share of responsibility in shaping a world fit for children to live in.

Women hold it in their power to put a stop to war. How?—By refusing to bear children in a world that does not guarantee them peace. But since such a remedy would be to commit racial suicide, a more practical solution would be for women to assume the responsibilities that go with the rights they have demanded for themselves.

Young women in college have a special obligation to prepare themselves for these duties, since they are to be the leaders of the future. It is encouraging to see the steadily increasing proportion of women students in classes on government and world affairs. The task of these young women will be to open the eyes of other women to the responsibilities of their sex. Once they realize that home-making duties extend to any environment that can directly or indirectly affect the lives of their children, they will have made the first step toward setting their house in order.

The brave women of the past who carried on while their men were away at war and nursed their wounds when they returned deserve a hallowed place in our memories. The great women of the future will be the women who refuse to offer their children as sacrifices on the altar of war.

What About Apple Polishing?

A great deal is heard on college campuses about students who polish apples. (In the army they call it polishing brass.) According to the rationalizations of disgruntled idlers, a student makes A's by getting on the good side of the faculty. It would seem more likely that students get on the good side of the faculty by making A's. Be that as it may, we have noticed that A students do seem to be on good terms with their professors, but could this be because they appreciate the fact that one who has spent years studying the things a student is trying to learn has something valuable to contribute in friendship, as well as in education? If you know members of the faculty who are interested in the same things you are, don't hesitate to cultivate their friendship for fear you will receive an undesired high mark. Go ahead and be friendly; but in the meantime, if you want to make that top grade, set your alarm clock for 4:00 A. M. and start digging. It's that easy!

Pledges Take The Spotlight

So you thought "Rat Week" was bad? Well, just look around you! Starting today you will see the unensured story of what went on behind forbidden doors of all sorority and fraternity meetings last week. The sophomores have had their fun; the other team is up to bat, and they are having a field day with their "treckle brushes" and "paddles".

If tomorrow you still see "beast" in the halls and on the campus, just remember that on the campus of H. P. C. this year, Halloween will last for three days. And girls, do not be mistaken—your boy friend is not standing up at mealtimes just because there are ladies in the dining hall.

But after brothers and sisters have played the charming little jokes and the sacred rites of initiation are finally over, we will all stand up together and say that it was well worth the effort, and that college life takes on an added meaning when we are entitled to wear the pin of our own sorority or fraternity over our heart.

—J. J.

Notice Special Exams

Dr. C. R. Hinshaw, Dean of Instruction, has announced that special examinations will be given from Nov. 5-10. Students wishing to take these examinations are asked to get in touch with Dr. Hinshaw. This urgent request. Grades for all freshmen are due Nov. 15. Reports will be sent to students who are not doing satisfactory work.

Letters to Editor

Dear Editor:
With "rush week" coming up, it has occurred to me that High Point College could learn a great deal from some of the larger universities and colleges. In recent years these schools have done away with the student units which are characteristic of fraternity initiations. In place of these units, they have substituted a constructive initiation program composed of "work-weeks" or "work-days." On certain specified days those new members who are to be accepted are assigned certain chores or duties which will benefit the college or community, or both. In this way a great deal of good is done and a great deal of foolishness is done away with.

Perhaps the local fraternities have already planned such a program this year. If so, they should be congratulated. No doubt the college officials would be happy to co-operate in this plan, and I see no reason why sororities could not accept the same plan.

Bill Hunter.

Editor: A very constructive suggestion. Any speaking of community benefits, may I suggest that they mow my front lawn as their first project.

Alpha Theta Psi

As a climax of Rush Week, the Alpha Theta Psi sorority held a chicken dinner party in the private dining room at Weddells on Friday evening, October 26. There were approximately twenty guests.

The table was decorated with red and white flowers, and each guest found at her place, a white chrysanthemum tied with red ribbons.

After dinner, the girls attended a movie at the Carolina Theater in Greensboro.

AROUND TOWN AND CAMPUS

By SHELDON MANEKIN

As the winter season begins to make itself felt, home entertainment is becoming more and more a habit and, even in the corner enshamble where the jukebox sings out its tunes, interest in recorded music of all descriptions is on the rise once more. This week there is a wealth of virtually every type from the boogie-woogie to the so-called long-hair category, and judging from the platters released, there is no reason why the choice of everyone cannot be satisfied.

Even Vaughn Monroe put out some extra fine platters such as Cole Porter's famous "So in Love," "Easy to Love," "Don't Fence Me In," "What Is This Thing Called Love," and last, but not least, is "I Got a Kick Out of You." . . . This one is a real exclusive from WV's column. There was a witty saying on a subway station platform, the sign read this way. Quote She's Lovely, She's Glamorous, She's Engaged, under which someone wrote, "She Uses Air Wick." Unquote. . . . Here are a couple of jokes, if you can call them jokes, that I picked up . . . Suggested slogan for parents with kids in college: "The dough must go on" . . . Robert Q. Lewis says he drinks nothing stronger than pop—and there's nothing his pop doesn't drink. . . . "I wouldn't mind being a wallflower," says Joe E. Lewis, "if Ava was my girlfriend." . . . For the information of the students at High Point College, I have not, and do not write the "Panther Prowls" as some of you bright people have asked me. Go ask that prowling panther who does his copy. . . . Here are some daffynitions, just for you:

Professor: A textbook wired for sound.

Shogun wedding: A case of wife or Death.

A Moron: A fellow who wrinkles his brow reading comic books. . . . Well, that's it for this issue, be seeing you around, like to leave you with one last thought: Quote; Patience is the best remedy for every trouble. . . . Unquote. . . .

Students Hear Billy Graham

By FRANK CAUSBY

It was an excited group of H. P. C. students that boarded the chartered bus bound for Greensboro to hear Billy Graham on October 26. Thousands of people filled the huge tabernacle to capacity. The service opened with Cliff Barrows and the choir of 1000 singing "This Is My Story". The voices of the choir uniting in "Make Me a Blessing" stirred the hearts of the congregation and prepared the way for Billy Graham's challenging message. The great moment had come—the moment for which some people had come hundreds of miles, the moment for which we H. P. C. students, were eagerly waiting. Dressed in a snappy brown suit with a carefully matched tie, the tall, blond evangelist, Billy Graham, who is a nationally acclaimed leader, stepped into the pulpit and began to speak. He chose his text from Acts 20:21. During silence among his attentive listeners, Billy Graham challenged America to a real revival.

Nation-wide Crusade
At present, Graham is conducting a month's evangelistic crusade in Greensboro. From there, he will continue his nation-wide crusade to appear in such leading cities as Raleigh, New York, Washington, D. C., Pittsburgh, Pa., and Houston, Texas.

Travelling with Graham are outstanding evangelistic workers from all parts of America, including George Beverly Shea, R. C. A. recording artist. Preceding Dr. Graham's message, Shea sang "Jesus Whispers Peace" and "Coming Home".

During the closing song, approximately 200 men, women, boys, and girls—young and old alike took their stand for Christ.

H. P. C. students are all looking forward to Billy Graham's coming to High Point College next Thursday.

Halloween again is here—
That strangely eerie time of year,
When ghosts and goblins all come out
To scatter terror round about.
The shutters shake; the screen doors squeak;
Weird faces through the windows peek;
Strange writing on the pane appears,
Designed to aggravate my fears.
A skull with cross-bones calls on me
And laughs aloud with fiendish glee,
But as he scampers from my door,
I know I've seen that face before!
—D. L.

BASEMENT IS LOOKING UP

By SALLIE KERN

Did you notice the busy workers in the basement of the Library last week? Well, students, they were working for you. These men set out last Saturday to move out old chairs, tear down partitions and clean up the old classroom, transforming it into a bound periodical room. It is to contain all the bound editions of the Educational Index, Reader's Guide, and all magazines except the current issues. There will be seating capacity and tables to accommodate about 40 students, affording a convenient and pleasant place for research work. Books from the above library may not be carried down to the new room as references, but must be used upstairs or checked out by the student wishing to use them elsewhere. The research room will be operated under the same schedule as the Library.

He will speak in the gymnasium Thursday morning at 10:20.

THE BOOKSTORE PHILOSOPHER

Someone said we shouldn't laugh at people. If we don't laugh at people, what are we going to laugh at? Nothing else is quite so funny!

Here is your music editor again searching around in corners trying to scratch-up some notes that may be of interest to you.

COMMUNITY CONCERT SERIES

Students, please take note of this section and try to comply with the request of the staff of the Music Department and your music editor. There is a group of concerts each year known as the Community Concert Series. The college purchases a block of seats or tickets for each concert and the tickets are available to any college student who will go by the Bursar's office two or three days before the performance and ask for one. This is one of the advantages which the college provides and it is hoped that you will take advantage of this opportunity to see and hear some of the better artists.

The first concert is scheduled for the middle of November. Watch for the date and the program!

STUDENT RECITAL

The Music Department presented the first in its series of student music recitals Monday evening, October 22, at 7:30 o'clock, in the auditorium of Roberts Hall. Those who were present will long remember the fine performances given by these students.

Our own six-foot-four-incher, basketball star, Ed Sueta, did a clarinet solo, Debussy's "Claire de Lune". Georgia Swink and Marian Stine, sopranos, should be rather proud of themselves after those beautiful solos. Have you ever seen or heard a drummer who can read music. Well, you should have heard Charles Black, one of our freshmen from Cherryville, N. C. Gayle Walden, another one of our freshmen, did a beautiful job of her violin solo, "Spanish Dance". She was ably accompanied by the fine piano teacher, Miss Fields. John Howard Allen gave a fine performance with his piano solo. What about all of those minor chords? Louie Eargle and John Raper gave their usual superb performances with their piano solos.

It is hoped that in the future students and friends will take advantage of the opportunity to attend these recitals. The participants in these recitals give inspiring performances and it is well worth your time to listen to them and good music.

CHOIR OFFICERS

The choir recently elected their officers for this 1951-1952 year with Willie Davis at the helm as its president. John Raper will be the librarian and Jack Peacock, the business manager. Congratulations, Willie, Jack, and John!

DISTRICT MUSIC CONTESTS

Dr. Wilson has been asked to judge in all the District Music Contests to be held throughout North Carolina next spring. Congratulations again, Dr. Wilson!

NOTHIN' DOING' TODAY

"What's new?" you ask the guy in the street, and he shakes his head and says, "Nothin', Nothin' new" . . . But there's always something stirring in this town. No matter where you're standing, no matter what the hour, you know that something is going on at the moment — if it's only the muted sounds of the pigeons in a church tower on Main Street . . . Somewhere in this town dramas are being enacted. You may never see them. But once you've tried to know this town, once you've explored the buildings and the basements and the alleys and the little streets, you know that news is breaking around the clock — twenty-four hours a day.

"Nothing new," the man says . . . But at night a taxi rounds a corner and skids and barely misses a drunk and nobody knows his name, and you know that this, in a way, was almost news . . . You know that somewhere in the city a lonely woman is looking out a window and wondering whether her son will ever return from across the sea; her innermost thoughts, and the thoughts of all those like her — these are news, the kind of news you can't set down on paper . . . No matter what time is by the clock on Main Street, you know that a story is breaking at that instant on some street in the West End or the Emerywood section or on the other side of the tracks; some kid with hate in his heart (or maybe just holes in his shoes) is stealing a car, or sizing up a place and wondering when he can break into it, or looking at a guy with a diamond ring on his finger and figuring the best way to snatch it and run. . . . The headline stories of tomorrow, walking down a wind-swept street — while the reporters who will write them slump in their pressrooms and smoke their cigarettes and grouse occasionally: "Dull day. Nothin' goin' on."

"What's new?" the girl in the drugstore asks you as she serves you a coke, and you shrug: "Not a thing" — and as you say it you know that a thousand things are happening, while the ice melts before your eyes . . . a big manufacturer is loud and drunk at a party (and that's not news because he's always drunk anyway) and right outside a man and woman collide head on and one of them falls to the pavement (and an editor would say that's not news because one of them was blind and their names don't mean anything to anybody — not even to themselves, probably).

"Never seen it so quiet around town," says the cabdriver as he slouches behind his wheel on Wrenn Street — and it's quiet, all right . . . You can barely hear the click of the door behind a little store as a couple of guys are let into a backroom crap game . . . You can barely hear the click of the blonde's high heels as she walks down the street alone. You can barely hear the click of the handcuffs as they rattle under the detective's coat — and he leans against the counter in a place on English Street and yawns: "Never seen it so quiet around town."

"Not much doin' today," says the news vendor as he scans his racks in front of his place. "Wish we had a good local killing for a change" . . . And at that moment, in a fashionable apartment on the North end, a young wife looks at her husband with joy murder in her eyes and wondering how much longer he can stand the thick silence and the thick rugs and the thick hollowness of her life. . . . And on Mangum Avenue a man with four children and forty bills and the symptoms of cancer decides for the nineteenth time that he's going to make that last big jump and end it all — and he drives for the nineteenth time out from town to the City Park and looks at the sunset and smells the good clean air and turns home again.

At midnight the last of the buses rattles empty down Main Street and the driver gambles back over the empty seats and sighs: "Whew, what a quiet night. The whole town must be asleep" . . . But in a dark speeding car, news is in the making, too — news that might emerge in the papers as weddings, as robberies, as pistol shots blasting

By FRANKIE CAUSBY

Lucille Craver

Bill Penfield

Searching the campus for an outstanding co-ed, the Personality Spotlight immediately fell on the pretty brown hair of Lucille Craver. Lucille's brown eyes twinkled as the Spotlight settled on her five feet and six inches revealing her notable personality. Lucille's numerous activities and achievements are worthy of the recognition she has received by being chosen for membership in 'Who's Who' Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. She is a member of the Order of the Lighted Lamp and is assistant business manager to the Zenith. Since entering H.P.C., she has become secretary of F.T.A. vice-president of Woman's Hall, secretary, treasurer, and S.C.A. representative of the Religious Education Club, a member of the Dramatics Club, and a marshal.

Lucille is the daughter of Mrs. Connie Craver and the late Mr. Craver, of Lexington. She graduated from Arcadia High School in 1948 and plans to receive her A. B. degree in religious education and social studies from High Point College in June, 1952.

She likes all kinds of people and her winning personality and big smile have won the hearts of all who know her.

Casting its beam toward the future world of literature, the Personality Spotlight falls on Bill, who is our Editor-in-Chief of the Zenith. Bill, a resident of High Point, is married and has two children—girls. He has proven that married veterans do come back to school and make a big success of it. He was one of the ten students recently honored by membership in the collegiate "Who's Who" for 1951-52.

Bill graduated from McCall High School, S. C., in 1943, where sports played an important role in his high school life. He won five letters in football and basketball. After serving thirty-two months with the U.S.A.F., he entered High Point College and plans to receive his A. B. degree in English in June, 1952.

Bill is five feet and seven inches tall and has black hair, brown eyes, and a winning smile. His favorite color is brown, and he loves all kinds of food. He likes to find people with new recipes. One of his main interests is people, and he says, "Why do we have to study plants and animals in biology, when people are so interesting?"

For recreation, Bill is still partial to sports, but strictly as a spectator. He finds his hobby in literature, and has adopted South Carolina's motto, "While I Breathe I Hope." But he also likes North

Halloween Ball Is Big Success

By HOWARD GRAHAM

An evening of fun and dancing was enjoyed by all who attended the Halloween Ball presented Saturday night in Harrison Gymnasium, sponsored by the Dance Committee of the Student Government.

The ball opened with both weird and beautiful creatures arriving in a world of splendor. Students and faculty members were present in costumes ranging from the modest bathrobe to evening dresses of exquisite nature, and other formal evening wear. First prize for the most original costumes went to Miss Betty Shepherd and Bill Miller, who came as a gypsy queen and a pirate respectively.

Adding much to the dancing pleasure of each couple was the soft, sentimental music provided by Ed Sueta and his band. Vocal numbers were presented by Miss Georgia Swink and Ed Sueta.

Proceeds from the dance will go into the treasury of the Dance Committee and will be used for other social events planned by the group.

Members of the S.G.D.C. are Doug Holbrook, Sue Allred, Betty Alexander, Frances Dearman, Julia Strouse, Maxine Swearing, Betty Shepherd, Bunny Link, Barry Newsome, Sheldon Manekin, George Clark, Bill Pittman, and Charles Caudill.

Men In Service

By BETTY CLARKE DILLON

It won't be long until Thanksgiving, and then we'll be able to see many of "our boys" who have been gone for so long. There are a few, however, who have made us a pre-festive visit, and we open our hearts to them.

Lonnie Bledsoe was seen in his usual manner, propped against the jukebox in the bookstore. The many people who greeted him, all agreed that it seemed more like "the good old day" with Lonnie home, even for a week-end. H. P. Bob Grady is in San Francisco, about going across. . . . Henry Mattox has been officially discharged, and he and Jo are living in Greensboro. . . . Lloyd and Buddy Nance, well-known H. P. brothers, are en route to California, prior to a far-eastern assignment. . . . Leon Green, Murray White, and Robert Ellis have been drafted as "bus drivers" into the Marines at Paris Island, S. C. Also with the "mud-slinging leathernecks" is Pete Hatis, our outstanding gridiron man of the '50 season. . . . What we're all wondering is if they allow sun glasses in the Marines? . . . Earl Kearns has been reported as hung down at Keesler, Mississippi, and is planning an all-important event during his Christmas leave, as are one or two others from here. . . .

We want to wish all our boys the best of luck as they serve us so far away, and all who return, we welcome heartily back to "the fold."

a tragic end to the familiar story of the frustrated romance and the jilted lover.

"What's new?" you ask the man on the corner, and he says "Nothin', same old thing." . . . but it's never the same old thing any more than it's ever the same old day in this town. . . . Look at your watch . . . and even as you gaze, a rich old man is dying in Emerywood, and a baby is being born at Memorial Hospital, and the wind is sweeping around the corner at the Furniture Exposition. A girl is shoplifting in a dime store, and a pedestrian is cursing at the motorist who just missed him on Hamilton, and Harry Rip is singing a song to himself in his little laundry — a song of his homeland. A wife is at her lawyer's office to seek a divorce, and the pigeons are wheeling in the sunlight above Wesley Memorial church. . . . The drama goes on, second after second, while the guy with his shirt sleeves rolled up, seated at the desk covered with cigarette burns, looks at the empty paper in his typewriter and grumbles: "Nothin' doin' today."

Dr. Chester Swor To Be In City

The Baptist Student Union invites the students of H. P. C. to attend the services of Spiritual Emphasis to be held at the First Baptist Church during the week of November 5-11 with Dr. Chester E. Swor as the visiting minister. There will be morning and evening services plus a special youth service at 3:00 on Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Swor, a native of Mississippi, is a nationally-known lecturer and conference leader and holds the following degrees: B.A., Mississippi College; M. A., University of North Carolina; Professional Diploma in Guidance, Columbia University; L. H. D., Baylor University. Dr. Swor also attended Oxford University, and, in 1937, was a speaker at the Baptist Youth Conference in Zurich, Switzerland. He went abroad during the summer of 1949 as a leader of the Youth Conference in Copenhagen.

First Baptist Church extends to the faculty and students of High Point College a cordial invitation to attend these services and to feel free to enter into the question and answer sessions that follow each evening service.

from each class to run for "Miss High Point College."

The sophomore class chose Betty Ann Miller and Nora McMasters. Running in the contest for the junior class are Betty Shepherd and Marian Warren. Chosen from the senior class were Sue Allred and Dixie Wilson.

At a later date, members of the student body will vote for the girl of their choice, and the candidate with the highest number of votes will become "Miss High Point College."

SOMETHING'S COOKING IN NEW HOME EC. DEPT.

Young men, are you looking for a girl with locks who also cooks? Take your pick! The four comely cooks who are all smiles over the newly equipped food laboratory are—left to right: Betty Lou Wofford, Madge Smith, Nancy Nall.

New Home Ec Addition Ready For Work

Miss Matthews to Assist

The new foods laboratory in the basement of Woman's Hall is now ready to do some practical work in learning "the way to a man's heart," which they say has not changed, even though the electric stove has replaced the old fashioned range of a generation ago. House mothers need not take the dreamy expression on the faces of young men visiting Woman's Hall too seriously—it may be just the aroma of apple pie coming from the basement which is affecting them.

Home Ec Program Enlarged

To assist Miss Ada B. Johnson in the enlarged program of the Home Economic department, Miss Edith Matthews has accepted a position in charge of the clothing laboratory. Miss Matthews, a graduate of Winthrop College, received her M.S. in home economics from Woman's College in Greensboro. She has had experience as supervisor of student teachers at Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va., preceded by wide experience in public school teaching, including the high schools of Charleston, South Carolina, Richmond, Va., Hickory, N. C., and Harrisonburg, Virginia.

Other Improvements Scheduled

The new quarters for the food laboratory is one of the many improvements scheduled for the increased efficiency of the various departments of H.P.C. New buildings which are to be financed by the New Era Fund will add immensely to the facilities of the music and science departments.

R. E. Club Will Send Gifts To Vassiliki Douna

Members of the Religious Education Club for girls have announced a party to be held Dec. 13 for the purpose of sending gifts to Vassiliki Douna, 12-year-old Greek girl adopted by the Student Christian Council.

All students or faculty members who wish to send gifts to Vassiliki may leave packages in the Club Room of Woman's Hall before Dec. 13 to be included in the package from the R. E. Club.

The Methodist Student Fellowship adopted Vassiliki two years ago. In order that the whole student body and the faculty might have an opportunity to contribute to her welfare, the Student Christian Council has assumed the role of foster parent to her.

Vassiliki's letters express deep appreciation for any kindness shown her, the following excerpt being typical: "I received the money you sent me as well as 1 piece cloth, 1 pillow case, 1 pound lard and 5 bars soap. Thank you very much for not forgetting me. You can't imagine how happy your presents have made me, for Easter is coming and with the money you sent me my mother will buy me shoes and many other things just as if my father were still alive."

E.P.O. Float Commended

The E.P.O. had the distinction of being the only fraternity from H.P.C. to enter a float in the Christmas parade recently sponsored by the High Point Business Men.

In true Christmas spirit the holiday motif was carried out with Reference Room Gets Approval Of Students

The popularity of the new reference room in the basement of the Library is evidenced by the numbers of students who are taking advantage of the convenience it affords in making materials for research readily available.

Equipped with comfortable reading chairs and tables along with the latest in modern lighting, the reference room is an attractive as well as useful addition to the Library.

Bound editions of the Educational Index, Reader's Guide, and previous issues of all magazines are to be found in the reference room. Current magazine issues are still kept in the main library.

From the relaxed expressions on the faces of the readers in the new reference room of the Library, the new system of fluorescent lighting has taken some of the "tension" out of research. The basement of the Library has recently been converted into a reference room for students.

Dr. Lindley Asks Americans To "Hold That Line"

Dr. P. E. Lindley of the college faculty was guest speaker before the Modern Book and Study Club Tuesday evening at eight o'clock, November 27, at the home of Mrs. E. O. Cummings. The subject of his discussion was "America, Hold That Line."

In making the presentation, Dr. Lindley cited three forces that are threatening the very survival of America. These foes are Communism, Corruption, and Centralization.

"While we kill Communists in Korea," declared the speaker, "we are protecting them in our own country, even in California." Much was made of the boldness and arrogance of Communist leaders in this country. "They are deadly enemies, boring from within."

Then Corruption in American life, from top to bottom, came in for more criticism. "There is stink enough to go round," said Dr. Lindley, quoting from Life Magazine.

But Centralization, the theory of increasing social control, poses the most dangerous condition of all, according to the speaker. "The state is ever more and more, and the individual less and less," said Dr. Lindley.

Seeking a remedy for holding the line of Americanism, the Professor turned to the very opposite to what is now going on. We need more individual thinking; better

Poem By H.P.C. Student Chosen By Anthology

The Hi-Po has received a letter from Dr. Dennis Hartman, Secretary of the National Poetry Association, stating that the poem, "In Exchange," by Dorene Lewis has been selected by the Board of Judges for publication in the Annual Anthology of College Poetry.

Mr. Hartman writes, "The Anthology is a compilation of the finest poetry written by the College men and women of America, representing every section of the country. Selections were made from thousands of poems submitted. We heartily congratulate students on this honor."

The poem, "In Exchange," formerly published in the Hi-Po, is reprinted on page 2.

On November 11, Dr. Lindley gave an address as one speaker in a series at Statesville on the theme, "The Family as the Home Base for Spiritual Experience."

The lecture was broadcast over Station WSIC.

M.S.F. Initiates Holiday Season

By MARY ALICE TEHR

M.S.F.'ers at High Point got the Christmas spirit early this year with a "Christmas in November Party" on November 8. The Student Center was decorated with festive crepe paper, candles, and wreaths in the windows, and a Christmas tree with lights. As people came in they gathered round the fireplace to sing carols, and their eyes sought the spotlighted nativity scene on the mantle. The guided worship which followed made each person present feel that Christmas was here, for the spirit of Christmas is giving. To prove this spirit of giving each person had brought a gift and put it under the tree for the Negro girls at the Allen High School, Asheville. There were Christmas games and refreshments. The group went away hearing the voice of Him who came at the first Christmas as a Gift, "In as much as ye have done it unto the least of one of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Looking Back

The year got off to a big start for the Methodist Student Fellowship with a bonfire on the ball field. It will be hard to forget the night when we sat looking into

Students Give Talent Show November 20

Tuesday evening, November 20, at the First Methodist Church a group from the college sponsored a talent show as their part of the Fall Festival.

David Auman served as the master of ceremonies. "Reggie" Cooke was the "barker," and Jewel Jones sold tickets. Jeanine Easterling gave the hilarious "Little Jack Horner"; "Kippy" Overfelt, "George"; and Jim Fowler, a ventriloquist act with "Danny". Norma Bogle was in charge of the make-up for Bobby Parrish and Dewey Griffin, who presented a blackface skit. Charles Cudde and Betty Lou Rose rendered "An Old Fashion Walk" and "You're Just in Love". Ken Bost and Jack Hedgecock, with their hillbilly band, were interrupted by Rodney Yates, who fell in the aisle as if he were dying. He was immediately operated on by Robert Lowder and Jean Lewis. So impressive was Rodney's acting that a small boy ran for a doctor.

The actors said they enjoyed the show as much as, if not more than, those who came to see it.

EDITORIAL

Now that the last remnant of Thanksgiving turkey has found its way to the salad bowl, it is time to begin to prepare for Christmas. We like to think of Christmas as a time of happiness for everyone, but especially for the children; and since we, the students of High Point College, are foster parents to Vassiliki Douna, it is natural that we should be concerned about giving her the kind of Christmas a little girl dreams of.

Vassiliki's life has not been like the lives of girls we know, girls who take such necessities as soap and lard for granted, never pausing to express appreciation for them. But, in spite of her appreciation for the staple items she receives, we expect to give a twelve-year-old girl something more than the necessities for Christmas.

She is now at the age when pretty clothes are becoming very important to her. Maybe she still likes dolls, but she is beginning to be reluctant to admit it. She would, however, enjoy making clothes for a doll; that would be in keeping with the dignity of a twelve-year-old. And you can be sure she would like some of the pretty, warm sweaters and gloves which are such popular gifts among girls of our country. If Vassiliki's mother could afford perfume, we wouldn't be afraid to bet you an ounce of apple blossom that Vassiliki had already been putting a little behind her ears when her mother wasn't looking.

It would not take any great sacrifice on our part to give Vassiliki and her mother some of life's little extras along with the necessary items we have been in the custom of sending. By sending Uncle Jim a Christmas card instead of a necktie, we could save him the embarrassment of having to pretend that bilious green was his favorite color, and we could save the dollar for Vassiliki, thereby making everybody happy.

Vassiliki has probably come to the conclusion long ago that there isn't really a Santa Claus. Let's prove to her that there really is one! If we don't, nobody else will.

PRESIDENT REPORTS:

Douglas Holbrook, President of the Student Government, submitted the following report on the meeting of the North State Student Council at Appalachian:

The North State Student Council held its semi-annual meeting at Appalachian on November 17. High Point College, along with six other North State Conference schools, was represented. Discussion centered chiefly around student-faculty relations and relations among student bodies of the Conference schools.

As you probably know, the purpose of the Council is to bring about friendly relations among the schools, particularly during athletic events. In the spring meeting, which is to be held in High Point, the John D. Messick trophy will be awarded to the school displaying the finest sportsmanship during the year. Each school has three votes based on treatment of visiting teams, attitude toward referees, and general conduct throughout the games. The conduct of the students as well as of the teams will be taken into consideration.

Basketball is now under way, giving us something to strive for in addition to the Conference Championship. Each of us can contribute toward bringing a trophy to High Point College.

No doubt, we will win a number of games—but remember, those other fellows are also people. Make them feel at home; hospitality is contagious.

The sportsmanship trophy was won by Elion College last year, at which time Roger Gibbs, president of the Student Government, made the statement to his student assembly, "We won it this year; let's earn it next year." Changing the statement slightly, we would say, "Two High Point boys left that trophy at Elion last year; let's make sure two Elion boys bring it to High Point this year." When you stop to think about it—what finer quality could we win a trophy for, than for good sportsmanship?

—DOUG HOLBROOK,
President, Student Government

IN EXCHANGE

One day my small world tumbled down
Into a heap of dust;
There was not ground on which
To stand,
No foothold I could trust.

But when the dust began to clear,
Fate came to reimburse,
And in exchange for my small world—
I gained a universe.

—DORENE LEWIS

Last weekend was a long, long week-end. . . In fact, it was so long that I forgot completely about writing the column. So, for this time, you'll have to read two columns that I wrote for the high school paper way back in 1947. The first one appeared three weeks before Christmas, by way of cautious explanation.

And everywhere in the royal city there was a great droopiness of spirit, and in the public places the harder inhabitants foregathered in sullen groups and grumbled one to another that it should be so infernally crowded.

And in the places of business the frantic customers went surging through the crowds cursing for lack of change and holding their weary feet. And in many places the sorely tired eyed uncompromising clerks and called in pitiful voices for their lost purses and asked what they should do about their overtime ticket. And to each and every one of those within the royal city, the woeful police opined that within the day relief would be at hand, and occasionally throughout the day they could walk without being trod upon.

But the wisest of those in the public spaces kept their counsel, murmuring one to another the while, "Have patience, O ye of little breath, for well do ye know that the twelfth month in the royal city was ever thus and as likely will be again." And, understanding not, the multitudes sagged slowly to unyielding pavements and of the fragments thereof, there were gathered up enough to fill 100 baskets.

MEN IN SERVICE

By BETTE CLAREE DILLON

Old Tom Turkey has wiggled his last tailfeather until next year, and with his cremation, we have unearthed quite a few bits of news:

Among those home on leave now are Tom Mixon, who crashed the home-games with "Booger" Heath; "Red" Smith, in from Phoenix, and looking the same ol' "Red" as we knew him last year; Hugh Gordon, back from Puerto Rico and surrounding areas, for a few days' leave (incidentally, he's going to be a Marine Papa in March!); and Jim Fisher, also on maneuvers in the Puerto Rican area, in for fifteen days. . . . Bob Grady is en route to Okinawa. . . . Bill Lloyd is in Denver, Colorado. . . . "Footsie" is still hooding it out in Missouri. . . . L. P. Ward is in Texas, at last report, having passed his O. C. S. qualifications, and awaiting an appointment, which he has probably received by now. . . . Donald Brown has been promoted to a Corporal, way up in Vermont. . . . Barry Buchanan and "Cuz" Draper are out at Fort Knox, Kentucky; Rud Ruth got another 13 day leave, due to a delay before chalking up with the Air Cadets. Donald Brown and Lloyd Nance are settled in Japan. . . . And that's all we've received from the Khaki front up to date. . . .

AROUND TOWN AND CAMPUS

By SHELDON MANEKIN

Since women are wonderful creatures, and you can't live with 'em, nor live without 'em, I would like to dedicate this week's column to them:

Here is a good definition of a girl: A girl is a natural thermometer. She can raise a man's temperature with a kiss, boil his blood pressure with a hug, but when she turns on the heat she is soon swathed in a warm fur coat. . . . and he's cold broke. . . . This little bit of witicism is from the "Chatham Blanketter", written by a girl named Aliene, and seems as if she had the right idea. It's called: "You must not". You may call a woman a kitten, but you must not call her a cat. You may call her a mouse, but you must not call her a rat. You may call her a chicken, but you must not call her a hen. You may call her a duck, but you must not call her a goose. You may call her a vision, but you must not call her a sight. . . .

Here are a few Nitecaps quoted from "Dolls & Gags":

Elsie: "Oh joy! How did you ever learn to kiss like that?" Elmer: "It was helping Mother with the spring cleaning and got my mouth caught in the vacuum cleaner!" . . .

Another one was "Since I started going out with that Doll I can't sleep or eat!"

"Really in love, eh?"

"Now, she broke me!" . . .

Here are a few new records that the gals at H.P.C. like: "Slowpoke" by Helen O'Connell, "Just One More Chance" by Less Paul and Mary Ford, "And So to Sleep Again", by Patti Page, Patti Page, Patti Page, and Patti Page, she does a neat quartet on this plat, "Kissing Bug Boogie", by Jo Stafford, and last but not least is a hilarious one by Jerry Lewis, it's called "Be My Love", and Jerry really puts all other recording-imitators out of business. . . . You really should catch some of those TV shows you like Jack Benny's hillbilly sketch. It was a daffy dance, and "Uncle Miltie" has a hilarious hour on Tuesday nights, and Perry Como's show tops the MUST on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights. . . .

I'll sign off this one about the fellow that took his gal to the big city. They were on a train and the train went into a long tunnel, so after the train came into the light again, the fellow said, "Sweetheart, if I'd known the tunnel was so long, I'd have given you like Jack Benny's hillbilly thing, really! "Gracious, wasn't that you!" End of joke, there's no more, but there is a moral from this and its "Don't put off tomorrow what you can do today."

The High Point College Choir will give its first big concert of the year Tuesday evening, December 13, in the auditorium of Roberts Hall. Everyone is most cordially invited to attend this performance. . . . We were mighty proud of Dr. Wilson and the Civic Symphony when they gave their two performances last week. The two ensembles have some real like them soon. . . . Congratulations to those students who used the tickets and attended the Community Concert last week. You had better get your ticket early for the concert for every ticket was taken for the concert. Did you enjoy the Philharmonic Piano Quartet? . . . The Victor B. Danekes gave an impressive violin-piano duo concert before a small but most appreciative and attentive audience Tuesday evening, November 20, in Roberts Hall. May we have more and larger audiences like this one!

MEET THE PANTHERS FOR 1951-52

J. V. COACH KENT MOSELEY

1. Center—"Easy" Ed Suetta—Hails from Erie, Pennsylvania, weighs 190 lbs., 22 yrs. old. Senior Ed without any doubt, is the foundation of the "Panthers" this year—the most valuable player we have, unbeatable re-bound man with a dangerous hook shot from either side—definitely all conference material. Best of luck, Ed.

2. Guard—Paul "Abbie Deals" Pryor—Comes from Woonsocket, R. I., weighs 200 lbs., stands 6'1", 24 yrs. old. Senior Paul is the "Unsung Hero" of the Panthers—good with hustle such as Pryor possesses, along with the right chances and breaks, he will play a major part in many of the "Panthers" victories—fine play maker. Thumbs up "Abbie!"

3. Guard—Sonny "Flip" Thornton—Arrived at H.P.C. from Raleigh; weighs 157 lbs., stands 6'1",

19 yrs. old. Frash: Sonny, the white "globe-trotter" of the club, is among the greenhorns of the team this year and has great possibilities of becoming one of High Point's outstanding players. Fine set shot artist that should aid in rolling up the "Panthers" scoring record. Don't let us down "Flip"—we're with you.

4. Forward—Harold "Slick" Sykes—Boy from Durham, weighing 185 lbs., stands 6'3", 19 yrs. old. Frash: Harold has great hustle and scrap, which should carry him a long way—good eye—has the spirit. Just keep cool, Slick—good luck.

5. Center—Bob Popp—Imported from Sellersburg, Ind., weighs 190 lbs., stands 6'4", 18 yrs. old. Frash: Bob has possibilities of becoming a fine pivot man, has plenty of coordination, good rebounder, with a lot of scrap. Possesses the right attitude and should go a long way. We all wish you luck for a great season, Bob.

6. Forward—Ken "Baby" Frazier—The man from Narrows, Va., weighs 160 lbs., stands 6'1", 18 yrs. old. Frash: Ken's willing to listen and has lots of ability to develop into a fine ball player—good defensive man—comes through under pressure—fine ball handler—smart ball player. Stay in there, "Baby", we're with you.

7. Forward—"Billy" Hicks—Transfer from Oak Ridge, weighs 185, stands 6'2", 22 yrs. old, Jr. Billy's hard to move beneath the boards—should get many of teams rebounds—fine shooter—drives hard. Coach has great expectations for Bill to be among his key men. Keep hustling Bill, we're counting on you.

8. Conrad "Shirts" West—Here from Winston-Salem, weighs 183, stands 6', 20 yrs. old. Soph. Conrad should be of value to the team this year—has one year of experience behind him—smooth ball handler—plays cool under pressure—fine eye—has plenty of spirit. "Shirts", we'll be cheering for you, so give it all you got.

9. Gene "Yank" Royce—Migrated here from Sellersburg, Ind., weighs 170, stands 6', 19 yrs. old. Frash: Gene should be among the top guards ever to play at H.P.C.

—smart ball handler, lots of hustle—plenty of scrap. Excellent attitude—fine eye—will see plenty of action before season is over. "Yank", keep hustling, we're behind you.

10. Bob "Skeeter" Davidson—Material from Cambridge, Ind., weighs 155, stands 5'8", 22 yrs. old. Soph Bobby proved his value last year and should have a better season this year. Excellent play maker with a fine eye—about the fastest man on the team, small, but a great scrapper—liable to obtain berth on all-conference. Knock the bottom out of that basket, Skeeter, we're for you.

11. Forward—Jesse "Snake-Eyes" Joyce—From the fabulous metropolis of Fieldale, Va., weighs 183, stands 6'1", 22 yrs. old, senior. The records of the past prove "Snakes" ability. Many a net has been cracked by his different shots. Jesse can hit from just about any spot on the floor and will probably be among the top scorers of

Mentor Bob Davis Says—

Mentor Bob Davis says: The three scrimmages we played against the High Point Y. Davidson, and Duke did the boys a lot of good. We looked ragged against the Y. At Davidson we looked like a college team should look. At Duke we learned a great deal; by the way—our teacher at Duke was All-American Dick Groat.

All in all, I would say we are in fine condition for this time of the season. Our offensive is sharp but our defense is our weakest link. The loss of Bob Draper and Bill Waiz will hurt us, but Suetta, Joyce and Davidson will be better than they were last year, and if we can find two members to round out the team, I see no reason why we should not have a team that will about equal last year's team. We hope to repeat the trip to Kansas City.

Support of students is a factor that plays a big part in the won or lost column. The conference—good defensive man—handles ball smoothly. Go get 'em, "Snake", we'll be supporting you.

12. Forward—"Tony" Lisk—Mountaineer from Mt. Gilead. Weighs 180, stands 6'4", 19 yrs. old. Soph. The most improved ball player on the squad—gets better every day—got plenty of hustle and spirit—excellent defensive man—fine rebounder. We'll put many points in the record book this year. Keep playing with your heart in the game, Tony, we're ready to take our hats off to you.

Civic Symphony Visits College

Visiting H.P.C. for the first time, the newly organized Civic Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Dr. Joseph M. Wilson gave a program of widely varied numbers at the All-Student Assembly last week.

Outstanding performances included "Rhapsody in Blue" by George Gershwin, with William Zimmerman, head of the piano department at Appalachian, as guest soloist; and Dr. Wilson's own arrangement of the World War II popular song, "I'll Remember April."

Made up of students of the college and city schools playing together with business and professional people of the city, the orchestra shows promise of becoming a real source of pleasure and pride to the community.

Kappa Chi Gives Banquet

The Kappa Chi, social fraternity for ministerial students, held its annual initiation banquet in honor of new members at the Elwood Hotel dining room, Nov. 16.

Bobby Joe Dennis acted as toastmaster for the occasion, with greeting to new members being given by Bob Barret, president. Response in behalf of new members was made by Johnny Hawkins.

The following new members were present: John Burton, George Auman, Johnny Hawkins, David Abernathy, Roy Eubanks, William Dupree, Reginald Cooke, Howard Coleman, and Carol Neighbors. Edwin Needham, transfer student from Duke University, was welcomed to the High Point Chapter.

Dr. William A. Locke and Dr. P. E. Lindley, professors of religious education at H.P.C. attended the banquet.

Dr. and Mrs. Cooke Pleased With Student Response

Students Wish To "Go Again"

Dr. and Mrs. Cooke have expressed pleasure with the spirit in which students have responded to invitations to the informal socials in their home. Dr. Cooke says the two parties were well attended and students seemed to enjoy themselves.

Other parties will be planned after Christmas. Dr. and Mrs. Cooke have announced, and every student of H.P.C. will receive an invitation during the school year.

Students have found the charming informality in the home of President and Mrs. Cooke so pleasing many of them have been wondering if they might visit again when one of their other classes receives an invitation.

The Panther Prowls

The little Purple Panther has had a tag Thanksgiving holiday, but that barnyard fowl had its revenge—what would I have done without Arthur Godfrey's Tunes! "Chief," you should give us more samples of that good cooking.

Dot Stone has been floating around on billowy clouds of happiness lately. I don't blame you, Dot, that Bill is "some man"! Here's hoping he can talk Uncle Sam into giving him more vacations.

The D.A.E. Fraternity sounded mighty good singing those love songs to Ann Lewis; and it made my little panther heart flutter to think about how wonderful love is. It couldn't happen to nicer people than Ann and Sonny, so here's wishing you the very best.

Oh, Oh, Oh, here comes the first truck and it is headed towards Woman's Hall! I got so-o-o excited I bounded from my daytime hiding place right out in the sunshine to find out who the future owner would be. One dozen beautiful red roses for Miss Elizabeth Co-gram. Lib seemed surprised, but happy—and in her calm manner, I heard her remark, "But Spencer and I are just friends." Call it friendship if you like, but Spencer would like to call it something more.

What do you want Santa to bring you for Christmas?? A pleading voice from the Boys' Dorm says "All I want for Christmas is my two front teeth." O.K.

Frank, I'll relay your message to the North Pole and see what can be done.

Frank Wiggs has been making track toward the Girls' Dorm lately. Maybe he has blond fever—anyway we thing he and Iris B. make a fine couple.

Who is this E.H.O. boy, Frank, that Joy C. has been stepping out with lately? It seems that a new romance has started here at H.P.C.

Basketball season is here once again, and with the team we have, it looks like we'll be champs again! Oh Boy, Oh Boy, Oh Boy, this is what I've been waiting for all year.

Dr. Moffitt was all smiles during Thanksgiving. Something to really be thankful for—a visit by Mrs. Moffitt!

I see that Howard C. and Ann W. are still happy. Have you ever seen a cute couple? Put those two personalities together and you have something worth noticing.

Paul P. has been having visitors from Yankee-land lately. Let us in on the dope, Paul, anyway, she's easy on the eyes!

Mother Nature is pulling the shades once again, and my panther instinct lures me. Look for me, for I will be crouching in the shadows waiting for something to happen. I hope you have fun, cause then I'll have fun. Until next time, be careful—the Panther is on the prowl.

The High Point College Choir of approximately 55 voices, under the direction of Mr. William W. Collins, will present its annual Christmas program Tuesday evening, December 11, in the auditorium of Roberts Hall. The Choir will feature the entire Bach cantata, "For Unto Us a Child Is Born" with Willie Davis, John Howard Allen, and Howard Coleman as soloists. Other soloists and a small ensemble of approximately 16 voices will also appear on the program. No one will want to miss this treat of the year!

This year's May Queen, better known to her many friends as "Billie", takes part in a wide range of campus activities. Her faithfulness and willingness to do more than her share have won the ad-

Students Speak At High School

Future Homemakers Learn Customs of American Neighbors

Carlos Horcasitas and Mike Reyes Varela, H.P.C. freshmen from Mexico City, with Eric Hernandez, sophomore from Puerto Rico were guests of the Future Homemakers of America at the local High School last week.

In answer to questions of students, Carlos, Mike, and Eric told of the customs of their respective countries.

The girls were especially interested in social customs with regard to dating. They were told that in Mexico City a father is much stricter in supervising his daughter's social life than are fathers in the United States. A girl is never allowed to go alone on her first date with a young man. It is only after he has met the approval of the family and is "going steady," that he is allowed to go with her unchaperoned.

Girls in Mexico have their "coming out" party at the age of fifteen. A customary feature of this party given by the young lady's father to introduce her to society is the fifteen years dance, a beautiful waltz performed by the honored young lady and her escort dancing in union with fourteen other couples to a traditional waltz tune.

The young homemakers of the future were surprised to hear that the young man in Mexico also has a "coming out" party. At the age

Student plays are always received heartily at H.P.C., and the giving of two performances affording spectators the comfort of the auditorium, has made this comedy doubly enjoyable.

Greg Merhige and Edith Harper manage to look convincingly Victorian, even without benefit of costume, as they rehearse a scene from the comedy "I'm a Fool," presented by the Dramatics Class under the direction of Mr. William Collins, Wednesday and Friday of this week at 10:20 a.m. in the auditorium of Roberts Hall.

Art Forum Closing Journalism Class Date Is January 19 To Be Resumed

Student Participation Is Invited

The English Department has received a notice that student-written stories and poems to be considered by the Arts Forum Committee must be mailed no later than January 19, to Marc Friedlander, Chairman of Arts Forum Committee, Woman's College, U. N. C., Greensboro.

The Arts Forum is an annual event in which students interested in the various arts are invited to participate. Literary contributions, selected by the judges will be published in the Canadi and discussed at the spring meeting. Miss Katherine Anne Porter will be the Writing Forum speaker this year.

It has been announced by the English Department that a course in journalism will be added to the curriculum next semester. This course, which may be substituted for advanced composition or creative writing, will afford a wide range of choice for the development of individual tendencies in writing, Professor A. S. Withers, chairman of publications, who is to have charge of the class stated. It is hoped that the class will bring forth talent for the benefit of student news publications, at the same time giving the student credit for his work.

Mr. John Peacock points to a photograph of the first monument of George Washington, erected at South Mountain (Maryland), 1827. The picture to the left is of the famous Harriet's Nest where General Grant became a national hero. Upper left is John Brown's Arsenal. The monument in the second picture from left is one erected to the news correspondents of the War Between the States.

Local Man Has Valuable Collection Historical Documents on Confederacy

Jack Peacock, freshman history major at H.P.C., needs go no farther than the library at his home, 911 Johnson Street, to do his research for a term paper on the War Between the States. Jack's father, Mr. John Peacock, well-known local business man and member of the County Board of Education, became interested in the bibliography of Douglas Southall Freeman about twelve years ago, and his efforts to collect some of the books listed has grown into a fascinating hobby which has made Mr. Peacock an authority on the history of the Confederacy

Zenith Editor at Oteen

Bill Penfield, editor of this year's Zenith, is now at the Veteran's Hospital at Oteen. Several of his friends from High Point College visited him during the holidays, and they are pleased to report that he is in top condition. He expects to remain at Oteen from six months to a year, at his present rate of steady improvement. Bill's friends send him three rousing cheers for a speedy recovery and early return to High Point College.

MARTHA

By DORIS LEWIS

When Martha, in her eighty-second year,

Put on a youthful flowered hat in spring,

The young ones said, "The dear decrepit thing—"

Does she not know how quaint she must appear?

But Martha thought it fitting to reclaim

The bloom of youth as in the years before.

The aged thorn that stood beside her door

For more than eighty springs had done the same.

and the owner of a priceless collection of books and documents pertaining to the subject.

An active member of various State and National historical societies, Mr. Peacock sends his valuable originals to the Historical Foundation at Duke University, retaining microfilm copies for his own reference. Among items which he treasures highly are a photograph of General Longstreet's first wife, a valid copy of the South Carolina Ordinance of Secession, and one of the more complete collections of the Confederate Veteran's Magazine.

Mrs. Peacock Studies Homes
In accompanying her husband to spots of historical importance, Mrs. Peacock has developed a lively interest in early architecture and interior decorating. Along with her husband's treasured volumes, she points to an admirable collection of her own containing beautiful reproductions of famous American homes. She prefers the spacious charm and simplicity typical of the Old South, a preference which is reflected in the inviting comfort and attractiveness of her own home.

Son Shares Hobby

Jack shares his father's enthusiasm for visiting remote spots of historical interest, the more inaccessible, the more prized is the photograph they always obtain. Their work in photography alone would be considered a full-time hobby by less vigorous followers of the cult. "We try to photograph places the average visitor to battlefields does not see," Mr. Peacock explains. The photographs these expeditions yield are valuable, not only for their historical interest, but for their artistic beauty. "We make two or three trips a year and always find something new," Mr. Peacock says.

I.R.C. Sees Photos

In a recent appearance before the I.R.C. in Roberts Hall, Mr. Peacock displayed specimens of his photography, including such famous landmarks as John Brown's Arsenal, near Harpers Ferry (Va.), the Horne's Nest (Tenn.), a natural rifle pit which, he said, "kept General Grant from becoming a scapegoat and made him a national hero; and a birch tree on the banks of the Chatahoochee River on which a Confederate Soldier carved his initials the day before the Battle of Peachtree Creek. The speaker commented on the fact that in looking for trivial items, one often finds important things. But Mr. Peacock is still looking for someone who can tell him why the lone grave of John Ingraham remains untouched on the battlefield, while all other known dead in the Battle of Chancellorsville were removed to National Cemeteries.

Hobby Adds Zest

Whether or not one is interested in history or photography, a visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peacock is convincing proof of the value of an absorbing hobby in creating a zest for life. The Peacocks have not only preserved valuable artifacts of Southern history—they have preserved the warmth of that hospitality for which the Old South was famous.

BTFTTTTTTTTT!!!!!! How do you like this weather? Okay, okay, watch your language! There may be ladies present. But I agree with you. I like spring, summer and fall, but this winter weather leaves me cold. There's one nice thing about winter, though. It forces you to stay inside and just take life easy. It's nice to relax in front of a fire and dream of the

And on the last day before examinations, the professors went out of their offices with gleaming eye and curled lip and sat cold and unmoved in front of their classes; and before the hour had fallen, great multitudes gathered together unto them, pleading, for none had a prayer and all were greatly overcast.

But the learned ones heeded not and turned their heads away from the anguish of the multitudes, and held their silence. 'Twas ere long they spoke again, in parables, saying, Behold, a student went forth to study, and when he studied, some of his learning fell by the wayside, and the dumb came and devoured it up.

They went on, saying, Some learning fell upon heads that were like stone places, where there was no grey matter, and forthwith these sprang up, crying, I knoweth all. And with this, the Pharisees spoke no more; and all were sore afraid and confused, for they comprehended not.

But ere the morn had risen, and the sun shone, many dried up because they had not kept what they had learned; others withered away and fell by the wayside, and some crawled to the book store with downcast heads—for Lo, they knew that Dean Allred would keep check on them always.

Then, when the last hour approached, there arose a great weeping and wailing and gnashing of the teeth, for they were in mighty fear.

But over all, a voice came unto them, saying, Behold the royal city has never, nor e'er will see again until June, another day like this.

And the woeful masses all opined that this was true, answering with great aunts and praying that in time relief would be at hand, while the weak in spirit sagged in countless numbers to the unyielding pavements, and of the fragments thereof there were gathered up enough to fill a hundred baskets.

Zenith Goes to Press

The Zenith Staff can take a deep breath and relax now that the copy is safe in the hands of the publishers. The local and excellent groundwork of Bill Penfield, editor in chief, who recently had to leave college for treatment at Otten Veterans' Hospital, made possible the completion of the work in time to meet the deadline. Dec. 15, the day before the beginning of Christmas holidays. The students are deeply indebted to all who have "burned the midnight oil" to make the '52 Zenith a success. With Miss E. Vera Old, Professor of English, as faculty adviser, and the tireless staff composed of Bill Penfield, editor in chief; Mary Alice Tesh, associate editor; Garland Wampler, business manager; and Lucille Craver, assistant business manager, a fine piece of work has been accomplished in the most efficient manner.

EDITORIAL

The year 1951 has been a year which will be remembered in the history of the College; it has marked the beginning of a long range program of improvement in the physical facilities of the school and has seen the achievement of the goal of the College since its beginning, membership in the Southern Association. After a justifiable period of patting ourselves on the back and congratulating our faculty, who, under the leadership of Dr. Cooke, have helped us gain our position of added prestige, it is time we started looking ahead to greater achievements in the future.

The best news we have heard since the beginning of the new year is that concerning the addition of a class in journalism to the English department. The Hi-Po has long felt the need of such a class. Not only should it contribute to improvement in the quality of the work submitted to the paper but it should add to the incentive of the student who, with a full schedule, feels that he cannot spare the time for purely extra-curricular work.

It has been the custom to choose the editor of the Hi-Po for the coming year during the spring semester. Since Jerry Jarvis, associate editor, is already a senior, the position for next year has not been filled. Any aspiring journalist who wishes to try his hand at newspaper work will have an excellent chance to show what he can do in the class on journalism.

OPEN LETTER TO G. I. JOE

By BETTY KENT

Dear Joe,

You should have been here this Christmas, but we all know and try to understand why you couldn't be with us. We had such a big family reunion, and it was good to be together again, with all the noise and confusion, like when we were kids—remember? Many of your friends were home on leave, and whenever I'd see them, they'd always ask about you. Several even stopped by to see Mom and Dad, and it made them feel good to know you are remembered.

Christmas this year was about the same. The late movie was on for those who wanted to spend their time quietly, and the churches boasted good-sized crowds for their midnight services. The local nightclubs were filled to capacity for those who wanted to celebrate in a less sober vein. Of course, we hung our stockings by the fireplace, just like we always did—even adding a few for the new in-laws in the family. We hung yours right in the middle, with your wings pinned on it—and, Joe, Mother put a candle in the window for you, just as she's always done when one of us was away on Christmas. She looks for you to come home every day, and we all reassure her that it won't be too long.

The rest of the holidays we spent rather quietly, having a few get-togethers now and then. Nothing much has changed around here—the old Doc down on the corner died; we all expected it. Mrs. Jones had twins the other day—quite an event. You remember how much she always wanted children after her baby died—well now she has two boys. Sis's baby has a new tooth. You wouldn't recognize her now. She weighs 30 pounds and has lots of hair—and can even say "Joe" to your picture. The Big Sports store burned last week—a total loss. Other than that, we're about the same old. New Year's Eve, we did not have a big party. Most of the folks were going home the next day, so we just stayed at home. It was a quiet evening. Several of the boys stopped by to tell the folks goodby. Your friends have really been swell to us, since—well, since that day. . .

It's 1952 now—and a new year is underway. There's lots to be done this year—I finish college. Sis's baby will be a year old. Steve starts to school. Dad is President of the Jaycees—and you might get home. You know, we have all shocked the day we got the telegram, Joe. None of us really believed you were dead—more especially. You should have seen us when your name was read out over television. We nearly went wild with joy. Then, on December 20th a telegram came to confirm it—you are still alive, somewhere in the world. Wherever you are, Joe, behind a fence, or bars, or chains—don't give up hope—we haven't. We still write you every week, and maybe they'll let you get some of the letters. Our prayers are for you every night—and our thoughts, every day. Keep ching up, Joe—it can't last much longer. . . Good luck and God Bless You!

A Letter To The Cheerleaders

Dear Squad,

On the behalf of the coach and team I am writing this short letter of congratulations to you, on your wonderful display of spirit in the past few games.

You have all taken the big responsibility upon your shoulders of bringing out the spirit of the entire student body at every game. This you have so far accomplished; don't stop now!

Your job plays an important part in every game the team plays. It will also be a big deciding factor in the final standing of the team at the end of the season.

We have a winning team; you all know it as well as I, so don't let them down.

Coach Davis, the team and all of us, tip our hats to you for a job well done. Keep it up.

Your Sports Editor.

TEAM "DOES ITSELF PROUD"

GREG MERRIDGE, Sports Editor

Over the holidays the Panthers did themselves proud by beating teams such as the Citadel, Union Kentucky and Milligan. The Panthers only dropped one.

All but one game; the Panthers were a very impressive ball club. It was against the Citadel that they played their poorest brand of ball. The night was nasty and the attendance low which never helps to inspire the boys. The passing was poor, along with the fact that we could not buy a basket. It was "Flip" Thornton, and only "Flip" (Who was high scorer:) that had a good night.

The Roar of the Panthers was almost brought to a screeching halt when they ran into a well balanced Union Kentucky team. According to Bob Davis, this club was the best coached team in fundamentals that the Panthers have yet faced. Union was fast and looked with plenty of scrap, hustle and spirit, along with a terrific defense. The Panthers had to play smart ball, being deliberate with every play. This they played and when the final whistle (which was music to the coaches ears) blew, the Panthers were on top 59-56.

West Virginia

Next the High Pointers met up with a team carrying a record of nine straight wins and a percentage of 82.6 in their shooting record before coming to the hard woods here at Harrison Gymnasium. This team being West Virginia Tech, who as you all know plays in a conference consisting of some of the top teams in the South. It's true we know in this tussle, but again the team did up proud.

In the second quarter the Panthers began to come up on the W. Va. Tech club by lacking only two points when the quarter was up. The score being 31-25. By the end of the third quarter the ball game was all tied up 58-58. In the fourth quarter it looked as if H.P. might come out on top, but the straw broke the Camels back when Ed Sueta and Jessece Joyce had to leave the ball game with the score board reading 62-62. Now the Virginia team started to take advantage of this break; rolled the score up to 93-80 and then put on a terrific freeze with the ball, and that's how the score stood at the end of the game.

Catawba

January 8th, the Panthers rolled over to Salisbury to face a smart Catawba ball club. Catawba was ready for the Panthers with a tight zone defense, which was the first time the team ran up against a zone. It looked bad for exactly six and a half minutes, but the tables turned as the Panthers started up by cracking the nets from the outside and moving the ball like a top notch ball club. Another victory reading 81-68 went down into the High Point record book.

Guliford

This past Thursday night we played host to a well polished Guilford team. This was a game that was nip-and-tuck all the way. Every man on the starting five for the Panthers hit the nets for double figures. "Easy Ed", the "Heart Beat" of the club with 20, Joyce 17, Thornton and Davidson, each 16, and Billy Hicks 13. The only reserve to see action was Tony Lisk who also hit the nets, by scoring 2 points in the two minute period in which he played. The final score was 84-68.

It was a great game, well played. Coach and fellows, we the students of High Point College take our hats off and say, "Stay in there battling us, we can forgive a loser, but not a quitter."

Good Luck.

MUSIC NOTES

By FRANK DEARMAN

Students, faculty, and staff were welcomed back to a new year of work and play with a delightful performance by the "Seminary Singers", from Boston University, at the first assembly period of the New Year. We were indeed fortunate to have this fine group of young men and their conductor, Dr. James R. Houghton. The group was en route to sunny Florida, a portion of their nine-day tour.

Your music editor had the pleasure of talking with some of the group and meeting the conductor. It is easy to understand why the "Seminary Singers" have won a reputation as one of the finest choral groups in the Nation.

Community Concert

The second in the series of Community Concerts will be given Thursday evening, January 17th, in the auditorium of the Junior High School. Mia Slavenska and her group of ten ballet dancers will perform. Miss Slavenska with some of the other dancers in the company was formerly a star with the "Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo," a group which has won acclaim throughout the Nation.

Get your ticket early from the Bureau's Office if you plan to attend. Every ticket was used for the last concert so let's take advantage of this opportunity again. Remember the change of place for this performance to the Junior High School from the Senior High School.

Those who love music and dancing will be interested to learn that the first local showing of the film "An American in Paris" will be shown in High Point during the week of January 14th. This movie is Hollywood's follow up to the British film "The Red Shoes", which has been included in every list of the best films of the year.

Do not forget these two events: Mia Slavenska and her Ballet troupe and the film, "An American in Paris".

Band Concert

The college band, under the direction of Dr. Wilson, gave its first evening performance of the season in Harrison Gymnasium, Tuesday evening, January 15th. Special features of the program included clarinet solo by big center basketballer Eddie Susta, a trombone solo by Frank Hammond, and a trumpet trio by Charles Caudill, Robert Hughes and Dr. Wilson.

Tour by Choir

The college choir, under the leadership and direction of Mr. Collins, made a short tour Sunday, the 13th, leaving Sunday morning from in front of Roberts Hall, they sped down to Spencer, N. C. to sing at the Central Methodist Church during the regular 11:00 o'clock worship hour. After a delicious meal served by the members of the church, the group continued to Elkin, N. C. where they presented music for the five o'clock vesper service at the First Methodist Church. Afterwards, the choir members were entertained with a social hour and refreshments.

The Panther Prowls

It seems a very long time since I last related the news to you—long before Christmas holidays, but what a vacation! I kept bounding from New York to see how Greg M. was getting along without Bonnie C., and back to Greensboro to spy on Bonnie. Christmas Eve I crouched beneath the shadows to see Whiffer M. give Betty S. that beautiful diamond. Then I went over to see Nancy R.'s shining face when she received that sparkler which means so much. It seems that Christmas holidays had quite an influence. Couples either decided to make their partnership permanent, or agreed to disagree.

The entire campus was startled at the surprising announcement of Bunny Link's marriage last August. See folks, never be surprised at anything—the impossible CAN happen!

New Year's Eve is always a happy and festive occasion. Most things that happened I can't relate, but be sure to ask Bucket Barnes about his celebration. Really, Bucket, I was surprised at you. The D.A.E. had quite a "bang-up" time at their fraternity meeting the other night. What about it Fluh?

Betty Clark is still walking around on air after that beautiful wedding. Oh, but it's good to see people so happy. . . Speaking of happiness and happenings—Betty Ann Miller is about the most starchy-eyed individual I've seen lately. A beautiful new ring, and a wonderful new husband in February.

Jerry Jarvis has really been playing the field lately. Come on Jerry, who is it going to be? We know you have that "snow-power" but won't you give some lucky girl a break? I don't guess it would be right though for just one girl, when so many can enjoy those charms.

The new bride elects have really gone wild down at the "smoke-shop" (Tobias) lately. Every girl you see lately has a little orange bag in her hand. Wonder what it could be.

Have you taken a bath in a tea cup lately? Ask any girl in Women's Hall and she'll tell you how it's done. The boys learned long ago the correct procedure for shaving in ice water; but I have a request from the freshmen that the school offer a course in "The Razor in Relation to Cold Water" next semester.

Have you seen that W.A.A. basketball team in action lately? They may not have that lost shot of Sonny Thornton's, or that smooth hook of "Easy Ed's", but scenery! Wow! And basketball ability to go with it. Good luck girls, we're behind you.

The prowling time for the tiny purple panther is here again. I heard a rumor that some great excitement was due tonight, so I had better go check. Be good and try not to get caught, but be careful 'cause remember I'm always on the prowl.

Student Government Launches Clean-Up Campaign

Red Cross Drive Now Under Way

Mr. Worley Defines Red Cross Service

Mr. Bland Worley, vice-president of the Wachovia Bank in High Point, and fund chairman for the local chapter of the American Red Cross, told the assembly audience in Harrison Gymnasium, March 5, just what services would be provided with the $29,912, which is High Point's quota for the Red Cross fund this year.

Wide Area of Service

The American Red Cross maintains an extremely wide area of service which includes military assistance and aid to returned veterans, swimming and first aid instruction, and the Gray Ladies' program. Of even greater significance is the Red Cross disaster service and the Red Cross blood program.

Disaster Service

Mr. Worley pointed out that disaster service is not limited to the amount of a community's quota, but the full resources of the American Red Cross are available to any stricken area. He used the flooded Kansas area last year as a concrete example of this service.

Blood Program

At the request of the national government, the Red Cross has assumed the responsibility for collecting blood for our military forces, with added burden of main-

This appealing thirteen-year-old girl who with her younger brother, sits on the steps of her one-room home in a small Greek village, is Vassiliki Douna, foster child of the students of High Point College. Vassiliki was adopted by the Student Christian Council through the Foster Parents' Plan, Inc.

FOSTER CHILD NEEDS CARE

Vassiliki Wants to Go to School

Vassiliki Douna, thirteen year old Greek girl, who has been adopted by the Student Christian Council of H. P. C., thereby becoming the ward of the students, is rapidly growing up. Vassiliki would like to go to school, but the nearest school is 14 kilometers away, and there is no bus. The following is the report of a worker for the Foster Parents Plan who visited the Douna home in February of this year:

Report on Vassiliki Douna #5152G

"As we entered the little village of fifty families where Vassiliki lives she came running toward us with a bright smile on her face to greet us. As I extended my hand to shake hers, she grabbed it in both of her work torn little hands

Alumnus of HPC Commends New Field To Prospective Ministerial Students

Ministerial Counselling in Industry Is Open Field

Speaking before the weekly assembly in Harrison Gymnasium, Wednesday, Feb. 27, Dr. Clifford Peace, pastor-counselor for Reynolds Tobacco Company in Winston-Salem, told prospective ministers of the opportunities for service in industrial counselling: "It is a wide-open field," he stated, "forty industries now have minister-counselors, and daily inquiries from outside the State are evidence of the wide-spread interest and promise of expansion."

Dr. Peace, a graduate of H.P.C., Class of '32, continued his preparation for the ministry at Duke University. He served as a chaplain during World War II, gaining wide experience in dealing with the individual problems of service men. This experience paved the way for the position he now holds, a position in which he has won national recognition for outstanding community service.

U. S. in Grip of Disease

"This country finds itself in the grip of a disease which threatens to destroy it—emotional strain is a disease," Dr. Peace stated. Of patients in hospitals at the present time he quoted medical opinion to the effect that 50% to 75% are emotionally ill. Many organic disorders are attributed to emotional tension. Among other problems having their bases in emotional strain, he listed alcoholism, divorce, and accident, not to mention

Dance to Honor Basketball Team

The Student Government Dance Committee has announced that on Friday, March 14, it will sponsor a dance in Harrison Gymnasium to honor the basketball team of H. P. C. At the same time the Dance Committee announced that Ed Suetta and his orchestra will be on hand to furnish the "swing and sway".

Plans are now underway for the selection of a queen for the event. The basketball players will be given the honor of choosing the lucky girl. Selection of the queen is to be based on beauty, popularity, and all-around personality. Ceremonies will take place during intermission, at which time the queen will be crowned.

The Dance Committee states that tickets will sell for $1.00 and may be obtained from any member of the committee. The dance will last from 8 p.m. until 11:30 p.m.

Spring-Cleaning Begins March 12

Best Posters Will Win Prizes

In an effort to awaken in students a conscious desire to keep their campus surroundings beautiful, the Student Government has announced that the two weeks beginning March 12th will be official spring-cleaning weeks. Any student who throws paper cups or other unsightly waste about the campus will find himself a most unpopular individual. It is even rumored that the Student Government would not deal too harshly should an irate clean-up-conscious student make a mop of such an offender!

Prizes for Posters

Prizes will be given for the three posters judged by the Student Government as contributing most to the creation of "clean-up-consciousness." Posters may be submitted any time before the 24th of March. They will be placed in advantageous positions about the campus as reminders that spring-cleaning time is here.

Use Wastebaskets

Wastebaskets have been placed in convenient locations, making it unnecessary for students to litter the campus with scrap paper or trash. Student officials consider failure to use these wastebaskets an evidence of poor citizenship on the part of offending students. They believe that open disapproval of such conduct will go far to correct it. Douglas Holbrook, president, stresses the fact that success depends upon the complete co-operation of the entire student body.

Student Leaders Will Be Listed

Twenty From H.P.C. Included

It has been disclosed by Douglas Holbrook, president of the Student Government, the names of 20 High Point College Seniors will appear in the publication, Student Leaders of America. Representatives were chosen from among seniors who have been leaders in some phase of campus activity. While it was not possible within the limits of the quota to give names of all students who have shown qualities of leadership, the president says that an effort was made to have adequate representation from the various departments of student activity. A list of the names in alphabetical order includes:

Al Broadway	Jerry Layton
Gene Clark	Joyce Jarvis
Charles Cox	Dorene Lewis
Lucille Craver	Martha Queen
Frankie Chapman	Mary Alice Teah
Ralph Futrell	Garland Wampler
Ed Henderson	Oscar Whitesilver
Douglas Holbrook	Bill Hunter
Raynor Kearns	Joyce Kearns
	Reba Wright

But one question inquisitive students have been asking is—"What can Clayton Snyder be doing at these rehearsals?"

Immediately following the play, a variety show will be presented. The admission charge of 35c will cover both performances.

On Courage

Courage in the face of great difficulties is one of the most valued human traits. Those who knew the late Mrs. N. P. Yarborough during the painful illness before her death saw such courage in the highest degree.

Mrs. Yarborough, who came to High Point College as Miss Naomi Morris, 22 years ago, made many friends as the first home economics teacher, and later as Mrs. Yarborough, the friendly wife of our registrar. It was with deep sorrow that the students learned of the serious illness which was later to prove fatal to her.

But Mrs. Yarborough's was a courage that did not ask for sympathy. During the long months of her illness she maintained a warm interest in the activities of her friends, and a sympathetic concern for their ills, always minimizing her own.

The same high courage displayed by Mrs. Yarborough has been reflected in surviving members of the family, all of whom have carried on bravely, making the most of life in spite of great sorrow.

At a time when many see only the shortcomings of human nature, it is families like the Yarboroughs who make us realize just how fine people can be!

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

During the past several weeks Doug Holbrook and I, along with perhaps other student officers, have been deluged with letters concerning both the segregation controversy at Carolina and the activities of the communist student organization in this state. The purpose of these letters is, of course, to influence student leaders to support the causes which the writers endorse.

Although they have followed these developments with growing concern, many people may be surprised to find that their influence may be felt on the small college campus. Very few realize the extent of communist organization right here in the U. S. and the cleverness with which it is attempting to creep onto college campuses, where much of the future planning of this country is now taking place.

Concerning the problem of segregation at Carolina, it is my opinion that this is a battle between radicals, both sides going much too far with their arguments. It is a battle which may easily lead to regression in education rather than progress. While one extreme fights for the complete abolition of segregation, the other is prepared to fight a last-ditch battle to preserve it.

It would pay college students, in the long run, to consider carefully before they take sides on such important issues. Communism, radicalism, and prejudice thrive on hasty decision. They are defeated by wise and careful forethought.

BILL HUNTER,
President, Senior Class

EDITOR:

It is one of the chief tactics of promoters of communistic propaganda to capitalize on discontent by promising happy solutions to existing problems, whether they be economic or social. It is just as true that once communist control is gained, all promises are forgotten.

To be sure, the South is in the process of working out a difficult problem, that of racial prejudice; but it has made great progress in the comparatively short time since the Civil War. Such progress has not come about through the kindling of prejudices and animosities between the races, but through co-operation and efforts toward better understanding.

In their pretended battle against racial prejudice, communist agitators are merely substituting one kind of prejudice for another. Leaders of both races know that hope for the future lies in education—NOT IN AGITATION!

In Appreciation

Mr. Douglas Holbrook, President
The Student Body of High Point
College,
High Point, N. C.
Dear Doug,

I hope that you can convey to the students of High Point College my deep appreciation and thanks for the beautiful wreath of pink and white carnations which they sent to the funeral of my beloved wife.

Mrs. Yarborough was always interested in the young people of High Point College, and before her untimely illness she spent many happy hours with them.

We have been aware of the kindness and sympathy of the students, and this quick feeling of sympathy largely helped us to go on until the end. I know now more than ever before what it means to be privileged to work with such a wonderful group.

My family and I are deeply grateful, and will always remember your thoughtfulness in our hours of darkness.

Yours sincerely,
N. P. Yarborough

Well, your music editor is back again in spite of the grueling experiences she has had this week. Civic Symphony Concert.

The Civic Symphony Orchestra concert, with Dr. Wilson as conductor, will be given Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in Harrison Gymnasium instead of the High School as previously announced. Mr. William W. Collins will be the guest soloist. The College choir will be featured in the final number "Ode to America." The concert will be sponsored by the EPO fraternity.

Do plan to attend. It will prove to be an enjoyable afternoon spent.

MY FRIEND AND I

My friend and I live side by side,
But there our interests divide;
For she is keeping a spotless house,
While I am learning a waltz by Strauss.
Her children come to my house to play—
I do not find them in my way;
Her chin's on a shelf high up,
I serve tea from a cranked teacup.
Her brow is creased and lined with care;
They say that mine is still quite fair;
She does not care for my waltz by Strauss;
I do not envy her spotless house.

Travel, they say, is educational. At least, I found it that way. I decided to do a little bit of it last summer, so all of a sudden, I slipped and went to Cuba.

I found it had its compensations, too. You don't have to make your own bed. You don't have to eat when you're supposed to. You don't have to get up at seven in the morning. You can make new friends and go before they find out how dull you are.

Before I took the trip, I had a bad cold, felt tired of an evening, and was scared to death of people. When I got back some two weeks later, I had a bad cold, felt tired of an evening, and was scared to death of people. But it was still marvelous. Even if the tourists did get so thick they almost pushed me off the bus of the street. But why should I be shooting off the mouth about tourists in Cuba? Was I a tourist, or was I a tourist? I know. But at least I wore the same clothes I wore at home, and didn't go around in a pink shirt, blue spectacles, brown sun helmet, and a pair of field glasses just because I happened to be in Cuba. And I never made any noise. And I experienced some things that most tourists didn't.

At four o'clock one morning I was asleep in the front room of a friend's house in the Mariano section, just west of Havana. Outside the window was a banana tree, and beyond it the flowering drum, and the fence, and then the street. And on beyond was the Gulf of Mexico, a misty blue in the moonlight.

For a while I didn't know whether I was dreaming or awake. I remember lying there a long time, just half listening, letting on to myself that it wasn't real.

even after I knew it was. From somewhere, out of the darkness, music was coming. It was so soft, so low, so gentle that for a long time it seemed to be of the same texture as a dream. The utter darkness, and the stillness that comes an hour before dawn, and the terrific quiet that lies just ahead of a thunderstorm, and the few far notes of a muted trumpet, flowed and blended into a harmony that was something of nature alone.

I got up in my bare feet and felt my way to the door and unhooked it and stepped out onto the porch, down the steps into the yard, and inch by inch, stone by stone, out over the cobbles to the front gate. I could not see the street or the gate I was leaning on, or my hand before me, for it was, as they say, as black as the inside of a goat. But I knew the music was not far away; the sound was within a hundred feet of me, up the street.

It was sweet music, sweet and swinging and low, but very sad. It was not jungle music; it wasn't ragged or primitive or poor, like some of the natives. It was like our own sentimental waltzes, only sweeter. I could pick out the instruments by the sound. There were four. A flowing, undulating, hushed trombone, and a muted trumpet. And a guitar, strummed with tenderness, and by knowing fingers in the dark. And a bass drum. Its sides were loosened, so softly it was a faint heartbeat, just holding together the structure of the serenade.

They were serenading a sweet-heart, I suppose. Or maybe they were farmers, in for tomorrow's market, full of rum, just willing away the hours till dawn. If they

MENC Convention

Some of the members of the local chapter of the Music Educators National Conference will be leaving for the national convention Thursday, the 20th, to be held in Philadelphia, March 21 through 26.

There has been a marvelous program arranged for those who attend. You are indeed envied the pleasure in store for you! Hurry back to tell us all about it!

Band and Choir Tours

Most of the arrangements have been completed for the band and choir tours scheduled for the spring holidays. The choir will be going to Eastern North Carolina and the band to Western North Carolina.

Piano Methods Class

The class in the Methods of Teaching Piano is progressing rapidly. There are a number of students enrolled and a larger enrollment is expected.

District Contests

Have you been missing Dr. Wilson around the campus and the music building this week? Well, he has been touring the state and judging the bands and orchestras for the State and District Music Contests.

Piano Class Recitals

The piano pupils of Miss Fields have been presented in two more class recitals. This is a weekly occurrence taking place each Friday evening at 6:45 in Roberts Hall Auditorium. Students and faculty are invited.

One of the most entertaining performances of the last recital was given by Louie Eargle, John Howard Allen and Miss Fields playing a Beethoven Concerto.

Soldiers Are Stationed Here

By SHELDON MANEKIN

A local army is marching on High Point College for the next few days. This mighty armory of strength will camp and pitch tents on the campus from the fourth of March to the 14th of March. The Baron Marshal of this army will be none other than Doctor Henshaw and the General of this army is Doug Holbrook with the following named Colonels on his staff: Charles Black, Jack Peacock, Frankie Causby, Betty Jane Catherman, Joan Crowder, Charles Caudill, Lillian Allen, Charles Kieny, Robert Lowder, Emily Badgett, Edith Harper, Sheldon Manekin, Robert Bue, Martha Queen, and Mary Jo Whitte. spoke between pieces, it was in whispers, for I never heard them. I don't know whether they were boys, or old men. I don't know whether they had on store clothes, or rags. I don't know who they were, or what, or why. I never saw them. They never saw me. They had no light. They played as a night bird sings—with their hearts, by instinct, and love.

It was one of those gentle and sad and timeless moments that will come back to haunt me for a long, long time.

It never snows in Mexico City, the home town of "Mike" Reyes Varela (left) and Carlos Horencitas (right), but when the first big snow of the season tarried the campus into a winter wonderland a few days ago, they demonstrated that they knew perfectly well what snow was for. The staff members of this local army will have the names of each and every private here at school, and you will be asked individually to contribute as much money as you feel that you can afford. Open up your hearts, and your pockets, and give generously to this worthy organization.

I hope that we in school never will have to need the Red Cross for any disaster but it's a warm feeling way down deep to know that they are near by in case of need. . . . Remember—Give Generously to this drive—YOUR RED CROSS.

HPC Tennis Team To Defend State Championship

Heavy Schedule Planned

The High Point College Tennis Team will be defending the North Carolina State Championship this season, with "Mike" Reyes-Varela and Carlos Horencitas as the nucleus around which a team will be built. John Hall and Rudy Frazier are the only other members of last year's team who will return. Additional members of the team will be selected through a series of elimination games here on the Campus Court. Dr. Ed Phillips, coaches, has announced.

"We plan a more ambitious schedule this year than last—probably the roughest schedule ever undertaken by a H. P. C. Tennis Team," Dr. Angeles states. A tentative schedule will include Rutgers University, Dayton University, Lehigh University (Dr. Angeles' Alma Mater), Colgate U., and Michigan U.

The Tennis Team will make a tour through South Carolina during spring vacation where it will play the following teams: Wofford, Erskine, Presbyterian, The Citadel, and the College of Charleston. The regular schedule will include all colleges who participate in the N. C. State Conference. H. P. C. will engage in ten matches, two each with the 5 other teams as they contend with us for the North Carolina State Championship.

PANTHERS BOW OUT FOR '52

By GREG MEHRIGE

The High Point College Purple Panthers met Eastern Carolina in the first round of the N. A. I. B. tournament, and Eastern Carolina made it the last round for the Panthers.

Both teams showed tournament pressure and got off to a slow start, "Old Reliable," Jesse Joyce, paved the way for the Panthers; Eastern Carolina's Hodges and Russell, however, were too much for High Point to stop. The curtain really fell for the H. P. C. quintet when, early in the fourth quarter, "Easy Ed" Suetta and Jesse Joyce were sidelined by route of five personal fouls.

The Panthers showed the old High Point spirit by bouncing back in the Statesville tournament to go all the way to the finals. The N. A. I. B. tournament was now well under the bridge; the boys wanted this new tournament and they fought hard for it.

In the first round the Panthers defeated "Little All-American" Rogers and his "company" from Western Carolina. This seemed to be Suetta and Joyce's night as they played excellent ball which advanced the Panthers to the semifinals, where they encountered the "Kansas City Travelers," Elon College.

This game, with Elon, was the best that the tourney provided—with thrills all the way. Suetta and Joyce were once again the fireballs of the night with wonderful team work; however, it was the "hot" playing of little Bobby Davidson which resulted in High Point's bringing home the bacon.

In the final line of fire, the Panthers fell short of the Championship, losing to a classy Lenoir-Rhyne five. It was sad for the team, but yet it was sensational as "Easy Ed" beat out Rogers to a coach who doesn't know how to say "die."

To the Coach: You did your job, Coach, and you did it well. Keep up the hustle and "best of luck" to you!

INTRAMURALS

After scouting these games, I believe the credit for I. T. K.'s success so far should be given to their head mentor, Keith Mobley, for his great strategy.

that they might live hopefully, courageously, more abundantly." This goal is accomplished by aiding the disturbed individual "to drain away anxiety, fear, sorrow, and guilt."

Religious Outlook Needed
Dr. Peace quoted psychologists who supported him in his belief that "at the base of most, if not all, emotional disturbances, there is a wrong attitude." Psychoneurotic patients over thirty-five, he believes, have almost without exception, "lost their religious outlook." Restoration of religious faith is considered essential to healing. "Christianity holds the answer!" he declared.

Essential Qualities
Certain qualities which Dr. Peace considered indispensable to one who would succeed as a minister-counselor included: first, the desire to help comparable to that of the good Samaritan; next, the compassion displayed by the father of the prodigal son; and finally, the capacity for vicarious suffering. "In the suffering of the innocent for the guilty, the he is healing," Dr. Peace concluded.

Couple Of The Month

By HOWARD GRAHAM

Who can blame "Whiffer" Miller for looking smug as he escorts Betty Shepherd from Roberts Hall. She is wearing his diamond—and what's more she is wearing a big smile—all of which spells happiness ahead!

One of the favorite campus couples is the Betty Shepherd-Bill Miller twosome. This pleasant romance had its origin during junior college days at Brevard, where Betty and "Whiffer" first met.

Betty, who hails from Kannapolis, entered Brevard College in the fall of 1949 and was immediately taken by the big, husky personality of "Whiffer", who thought a boy from Troy would please this pert freshman. Many happy hours were spent together by these two, but "as the course of true love never runs smoothly," they soon parted.

Upon entering High Point College, Betty found, of course, "Whiffer," and they started all over again. This proved to be the sure thing, for Betty is now sporting a large beautiful diamond.

Betty and Bill are almost inseparable, and one is likely to see them together almost anywhere on the campus. They may also be seen together at ball games and other off-campus activities since "Whiffer" owns a handsome black and green Ford.

Betty has become very popular since entering High Point College. She is on the Dance Committee, representing the Junior class; candidate for Miss High Point College, again representing the Junior class; also Betty is a member of the May Day Court. To add to her honors, Betty was recently elected president of the Theta Phi Sorority for next year.

Bill, usually called "Whiffer," transferred from Brevard College as a Business Major. Even though he is a busy senior, Bill still finds time for the E. H. O. Fraternity and his work with the Athletic Department at H. P. C.

up the student committee:

Freshmen—Charles Black, Jack Peacock, Frankie Causby, Betty Leatherman.

Sophomores—Joan Crowder, Charles Caudill, Lillian Allen, Sheldon Manekin.

Juniors—Charles Kinsey, Robert Lowder, Emily Badgett, Edith Harper.

Seniors—Douglas Holbrook, Robert Buie, Martha Queen, Mary Jo Whitfield.

Mr. Wooley expressed confidence that the students and faculty of High Point College would respond as they have in the past to this worthy cause.

Methodist Students Present Drama

Members of the Methodist Student Fellowship presented an informal drama entitled "Can God Be Found on High Point College Campus?" at their regular meeting on Thursday, March 6, at 7:30 p.m. The drama developed the idea that God can be found at High Point College if we take time to look for Him.

The cast included Reginald Cooke, Robert Lowder, Oscar Whitescarver, Robert Barrett, Dan Stowe, Louie Eargle, George Armstrong directed the group.

Dick Adams entertained the group with a very commendable performance as a magician. His slight-of-hand act attracted the attention of the audience almost as completely as did the drama.

Leap Year Party Benefits Prom

Despite the lack of heat in Harrison Gymnasium, approximately one hundred persons attended the Leap Year Party which was sponsored by the Junior class. Officers and members of the Junior class termed the affair, held for the benefit of the Junior-Senior Prom, "a success."

Recorded music furnished a background for round and square dancing and cake walks. Dick Adams called the figures for the square dances, and the Home Ec Department and Mrs. J. H. Allred furnished the cakes for the cake walks.

Members of the faculty and staff who braved the cold to attend were: Dean and Mrs. J. H. Allred, Mrs. J. G. Fearing, Dr. Helen Bartlett, Mrs. Betty Perry, and Dr. James Moffitt.

The proceeds from the party will be used to help pay for the Junior-Senior Prom.

Future Teachers Invited to Tea

The Delta Kappa Gamma Sorority, made up of teachers who have made outstanding contributions to education, invite future teachers who are seniors at H. P. C. to a tea to be given in the Administration Building of the High Point City Schools, 900 English Street, at 7:30 p.m., March 14th.

The tea for future teachers, which has become a yearly event, affords members of the profession an opportunity to meet newcomers and gives beginning teachers an opportunity to benefit from the experiences of older teachers.

The program for the evening will include a speaker who will bring pertinent and entertaining information for teachers, to be followed by an informal social hour featuring games and refreshments.

The Panther Prowls

Here it is time for the panther again, although I'm just a little cold—or should I say freezing—I am once again ready to let you in on the know. Talking about weather, have you been in any of the buildings at High Point College lately? Boy, Alaska was never like this! The Eskie-Bears would probably freeze to death here. I can't even find a warm corner in which to crouch.

What is this I'm hearing about returning service men coming to see H. P. C. girls lately? Sure is exciting around this place. Come on girls, let us in on the know.

We have often wondered what any other place had that High Point didn't, now we know—we've gotten now. Maybe we could just put out a WELCOME DUKE mat for our new members. Anyway we're glad to have you, fellows, and we hope that you like us and will stay.

It looks as if Dr. Cooke has called another faculty (I think that's the correct term used by the more scholarly people) meeting and given out orders. He has once again declared that test week is here, and that each professor is to give all work possible in ten days. One thing sure, it sure cuts out a bunch of social life around here.

and bent to kiss it. The little village on the blue Saronic Sea is made up of small, improvised houses.

"Vassiliki is now thirteen years old. Despite her youth she is the one who keeps the household running. She does all of the house-keeping—cleans their one room house, cleans the place where their three goats, chickens and cat stay, washes the dishes (tin plates, kitchenware and pans) in their open-air, improvised kitchen sink (a tin basin set up on a heap of rocks) and takes care of younger sister and brother. She and her younger sister take turns leading the goats to feed."

"There is no school in the village as the one they had was completely destroyed. At one time it was a fairly nice two-story building. Vassiliki wants very much to learn and go to school but the nearest school is 14 kilometers away, with no bus service. A woman moved to the village a year ago who, for $1 a month, teaches

Please, Please, the students are screaming mercy, not "Merci." Jo Tilley, that pair of E. P. O. socks that you just finished are mighty sharp. Jane Crews has gone wild on D. A. E. socks. I wonder who they are intended for. Of course no one around here would know, would they.

Have you heard?!? I repeat, HAVE YOU HEARD?!? Nurse Myrtle has made a startling remark—but I must say a most "charming" one. The girls dorm is going to be converted into a boys' dorm. That is if the boys' health doesn't improve a great deal pretty quickly. Right now, Nurse has an entire infirmary full of boys. Come on girls, this is your chance, boys right in the same building. The only trouble is that they can't have visitors. Isn't that right Marian Warren. Don't worry too much though, all reports are that "Red" will live.

Speaking of colds and cold weather, I had better put on an extra coat and begin my prowling over to the dorms. As long as I stay outside, I am not cold, but it really takes nerve to go into one of these buildings. Nevertheless, you had better be good, 'cause the panther is once again on the prowl.

the children reading and writing and simple elementary subjects (arithmetic, geography, Greek history) but her instruction can hardly be called formal schooling. The children in the village would be illiterate but for this simple teaching."

"The mother cooks and does the shopping in a little town 14 kilometers away. It takes her entire day to go and return, with just a couple of hours spent in the town, as most must be by mule back." "The room they live in is about 15 by 15 feet. There are no beds, and they spread bedclothes on the floor at night on which they sleep, huddling together for warmth. The cooking is done outside the house over an open fire. Their only ornaments are presents the children receive thru the Plan—gifts from their Foster Parents. These are treasured."

"Now that they receive no pension from the State (only the families of men killed while in uniform now receive pensions) they must live entirely on the grants the Douna children receive from the Plan."

To those who hesitate to donate to the program because they are temporarily away from home, Mr. Wooley said, "When an emergency arises, a victim is not asked where he lives. The Red Cross answers the call where the need lies."

Students and Faculty Organize—Dr. C. R. Hinshaw, who is the head of the College drive for funds has appointed Douglas Holbrook, president of the Student Government, as chairman of the student campaign. The following representatives from each class make
